Doings in Buckeye.

Columbus, O., May 3.—Managers representing theaters in 25 of the smaller cities in central, southern and western Ohio met here and formed an association to resist the movement of a Philadelphia theatrical syndicate to control the bookings for theaters outside the larger cities. The syndicate claims already to have secured leases or booking arrangements for theaters in 23 towns in Ohio. The managers of the other theaters object to paying 5 per cent of gross receipts for bookings. The Ohio Opera House Managers' association is the name of the organization formed here. W. O. Yard of Wellston is president; Charles McClellan of Xenia, vice president; W. Westover, Ashland, secretary; and M. L. Wolf, Delaware, treasurer.

Plans were made for a meeting to be held in the summer, probably in August, at which the organization will be perfected and active steps taken for securing the reforms for which the managers are entering into the combination.

Wealthy Farmer Shot.
Washington, C. H., O., May 3.—Fred Marchant, 27, with a wife and child, lies at the point of death at his home near Millersville, while Fred Warning, a bartender, is suffering from a wound in the leg, and George Kirby, a saloon keeper, is locked up in the Fayette county jail. Marchant is a son of R. W. Marchant, one of the wealthiest farmers of Fayette county. It is said that the trouble began when Kirby called Marchant into his saloon, as the latter was passing on the street. An argument on the temperance question ensued. Warning, the bartender, claims Kirby fired the shots.

Bridge Suits Reinstated.
Bellefontaine, O., May 3.—The circuit court ordered reinstated on the common pleas docket eight suits from as many counties against the Bellefontaine Bridge company. Attorney General Ellis recently appealed on error, as the actions were dismissed in common pleas court for want of prosecution and security of costs. The suits are to recover large sums alleged to have been illegally drawn from county treasuries by members of the so-called bridge trust, through overcharges in building bridges in the counties throughout this section of the state.

Captain Davis Surrenders.
Ironton, O., May 3.—Captain John Davis, who shot and instantly killed Dr. C. W. McCoy, a prominent physician of South Point, in this county, came to this city and surrendered himself to the officials. He waived examination and was bound over to the next grand jury under a charge of first degree murder. The reason Davis gives for committing the crime was that he came from Portsmouth and found his wife and Dr. McCoy in the dining room. A fight ensued, which resulted as told above.

Through Agency of Spirits.
Dayton, O., May 3.—After many days, covering a period of two years, the case against Neal Overholser and George Williams, charged with swindling Mrs. Martha Williams in a real estate deal, came up for hearing before Judge Jones of Troy, who granted separate trials. Mrs. Williams, the complainant, is a Spiritualist, and claims to have received an inkling of the alleged fraud perpetrated upon her through the agency of spirits.

Crack Gunner an Ohio Boy.
Hamilton, O., May 3.—Word received here shows that an Ohio boy has made a record as the champion gunner of the United States navy. He is Tracy Ross, the 21-year-old son of Mrs. Ella Ross of this city. In practice off Guantanamo, Cuba, he made the best record in the navy and was appointed a gun captain on the Missouri. Young Ross expects to leave the service in July, when his term expires.

Ouster Suit Dismissed.
Findlay, O., May 3.—George H. Phelps, who last Tuesday afternoon filed a suit in the common pleas court here asking that the court issue an injunction restraining the Standard Oil company and its constituent companies from doing business in state of Ohio, Thursday evening asked the court to dismiss the petition. This was accordingly done, but without prejudice to the right of the so-called independent oil operators or refiners.

Mr. Phelps added this personal note as a reason for the dismissal of the suit: "First, that I do not consider such action longer necessary; and second, my friends think it ought not to have been brought."

No Trace of Boy.
Cleveland, O., May 3.—No trace has been found of Alexander Hoenig, the little son of David L. Hoenig, who has been missing two or three days, and who is believed to have been kidnapped from in front of his father's house. Hoenig now believes that the boy was stolen by the Black Hand for revenge. Several weeks ago, according to members of the family, Hoenig became involved in a quarrel with several Italians who were in the neighborhood. The Italians departed, threatening revenge.

Iron Bar Tied Around Neck.
Cleveland, May 3.—A man believed to be C. G. Stickie, a traveling man of Pittsburgh, jumped from what is known as "suicide pier," after having tied a 50-pound iron bar around his neck. He sank instantaneously. Just as Stickie plunged off of the pier some fishermen saw him. They rushed to the end of the pier, but the man had sunk from view. With hooks on the end of long lines they raked the bottom from the pier and from small boats for more than an hour before the body was brought to the surface.

Wound Caused Death.
Columbus, O., May 3.—Eugene O'Connor, 45, died at a hospital as a result of a bullet wound inflicted Monday by Howard Koehl, a Norfolk and Western brakeman. Koehl was arrested at Portsmouth on a charge of murder. During an argument between the two men, O'Connor was shot in the back just below the shoulder, the bullet penetrating the lung.

Afflicted at Carey.
Upper Sandusky, O., May 3.—The annual pilgrimage to Our Lady of Consolation church at Carey, O., the only pilgrimage shrine in the United States, occurred Thursday, with the largest attendance in years. Upwards of 50 priests assisted in the ceremonies and hundreds of afflicted from a distance sought relief before the famous healing statue.

Increase of Wages.
East Liverpool, O., May 3.—More than 200 employees of the East Liverpool Traction and Light company received an increase of 10 per cent in wages by the signing of a new wage scale. The wages range from 23 to 25 cents an hour.

Win Fight For Higher Wages.

New York, May 3.—The officers of the Coastwise Steamship company have won their fight for higher wages. The Consolidated Steamship company have made terms with the men. The only lines that have not conceded the demands are the Atlantic Coast Lumber company, the Cuffey Oil company and the Standard Oil company. These companies are expected to follow the example of the others.

Baptist Foreign Missions.

Canton, O., May 3.—The Woman's Baptist Foreign Missionary society of Ohio closed its nineteenth annual meeting here. These officers were elected: President, Mrs. T. J. Kirkpatrick, Springfield; vice president, Mrs. L. T. Scofield, Cleveland; treasurer, Mrs. G. H. Laird, Columbus; treasurer Woman's Baptist Foreign Missionary society of the west, Mrs. Matilda E. Kline, Chicago.

Hotel Burns.

Durham, N. C., May 3.—Fire destroyed the Hotel Carolina, a four-story frame structure located in the center of the city, entailing a loss of $175,000, fully covered by insurance. There were 50 or 75 guests, all of whom escaped without injury.

Will Address Millers.

Springfield, O., May 3.—Colonel J. W. Burke, president of the National Millers' association, received a message from Secretary of War Taft accepting the invitation to be the guest of the association in St. Louis May 30, and to make an address.

TRANSVAAL PREMIER
DECLARES HIMSELF

London, May 3.—General Botha, premier of the Transvaal, sprung a surprise at the imperial conference by the declaration that he was uncompromisingly opposed to a commercial conference within the empire. It was generally supposed he would agree with the premiers of New Zealand, Natal and Cape Colony. General Botha's declaration took the line that it would be quite competent for his government to raise tariffs against British goods or against those of other countries if that policy commended itself. He protested against any attempt to rob the respective governments of freedom in tariff matters.

APPREHENSION
FELT AT BOISEMoyer-Haywood Case Held a Contest
Between the Classes.

FEAR OUTBREAK OF CRANK

Threatening Letters by Hundreds Received by Governor Gooding—Many Intimate Harry Orchard Is a Marked Man—Preparations for Opening of the Trial.

Boise, Idaho, May 3.—There is every reason for believing that the trial of William Haywood, charged with complicity in murder of Governor Steunenberg, will be commenced Thursday next. Both sides have mobilized their legal forces in Boise and are working energetically on final preparations.

WILLIAM D. HAYWOOD.

for the trial. For the defense there are such famous western advocates as Nugent of Silver City, Richardson of Denver, Clarence Harvey of Chicago and Miller of Spokane. The state meets this array with Haley and Senator Borah of Boise, and a Prosecutor Van Dura and Attorney Stone, both of Caldwell, Governor Steunenberg's home city.

There is a strong undercurrent of apprehension and nervousness under the surface of calm. Violence is the ever-present fear. The position of the prisoners and their activity through years of bitter labor warfare.

the dissension over their arrest in Colorado and removal to Idaho, the rallying of thousands of workmen to their support, and the radical propaganda undertaken in their behalf, together with the intense feeling against the Mine Owners' association and other incidents, have served to make the case in the minds and attitude of thousands a contest between the classes rather than a trial for the alleged crime of murder.

In a few minds there is belief that Haywood, Moyer and Pettibone, their friends or the men affiliated with them in labor union circles, would approve any act of violence at this time. But there is a general fear that from the ranks of the violent radicals there may come a man or men desperate enough to attempt assassination.

Letters that threaten every form of violence are pouring into Boise from all over the country by hundreds, and most of them are directed to Governor Frank R. Gooding, who is made largely to bear the brunt of all that this celebrated case invites. Another man similarly marked, in the belief of many men, is Harry Orchard, alleged to be the assassin hired by the three prisoners, whose alleged confession is the basis of the state's case.

Harry Orchard may live to die on the gallows for his confessed part in the murder of Steunenberg, but such is not the belief of all the men in this community.

ITALIAN TENOR
ATTEMPTS LIFE

Milan, May 3.—Arcangelo Rossi, the tenor, who was with the Grand Opera company in San Francisco during the earthquake, and who as the result of the fright he experienced has not since been well, endeavored to commit suicide here. Recently he lost his wits. This calamity weighed so deeply on his mind that he went crazy and he cut out his tongue with a pair of scissors. He was taken to a hospital in a critical condition.

Immigration Records Smashed.

New York, May 3.—All records for the number of immigrants arriving at the port of New York in a single day were broken in the 21 hours ending at 8 p.m. Thursday. Fourteen steamships brought into the harbor 20,723 immigrants, from nearly every section of the civilized world. This exceeds by fully 1,000 the largest number of immigrants ever landed here in a single day. From Naples five steamers brought 8,267 average passengers.

Bricklayers Locked Out.

Philadelphia, May 3.—After vainly trying since Friday of last week to settle their trade dispute, which involves the question of the granite cutters' right to set stone which they have finished, the journeymen bricklayers of this city, to the number of 2,400, were locked out by the master bricklayers. With the bricklayers are affiliated about 400 masons. The lock-out will involve 30,000 workmen in this city, and tie up nearly every building operation.

HUGHES LOST.

New York Senate Reconfirms Kelsey in Insurance Office.

Albany, N. Y., May 3.—One year to a day from the time of his original appointment by Governor Higgins, the senate reconfirmed Otto Kelsey in the office of state superintendent of insurance, giving only 24 of the 26 votes necessary to sustain Governor Hughes' recommendation of his removal from office. Twenty-seven votes were cast against removal. The result was received with applause and cheers from crowded floor and gallery. The senators broke party lines as follows: For removal—Republicans, 22; Democrats, 2. Against removal—Republicans, 10; Democrats, 17.

A PRINTING PLANT
RAIDED BY POLICE

Pittsburg, May 3.—Postoffice Inspectors Williams, Lucas and Craighead have unearthed, it is said, the printing establishment where alleged lottery tickets have been turned out by the wholesale for distribution throughout New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia. Following the arrest of Samuel Conkle at Chester, W. Va., recently, for using the mails to defraud, the inspectors concentrated their efforts in West Virginia in an endeavor to locate the printing establishment. Wednesday night, it is said, they discovered the place at New Cumberland, W. Va. Among the cuts was one of Ultra Big Game Lottery company, a concern of which the inspectors had heard nothing before. The cut was for circulars advertising a drawing of $20,000 by the company. In addition to the arrest of Conkle, two other men have been taken into custody here. According to the United States authorities numerous other arrests will be made in connection with the case.

Drewer Fined.

New York, May 3.—William A. Brewer, Jr., former president of the Washington Life Insurance company, was sentenced to pay a fine of $500 for making a false and fraudulent report to superintendent of insurance in regard to the financial condition of that company. Two indictments charging perjury were dismissed. Mr. Brewer paid the fine.

Denmark's Position.

Copenhagen, May 3.—In consequence of rumors that have been in circulation recently, Premier Christensen issued the following statement: "The Danish government has not and will not conclude a secret treaty with Germany. The object of the government's policy is neutrality and no alliances."

Major Rathbone Dead.

San Francisco, May 3.—Major General Rathbone died here after a brief illness. He was consul at Paris under the first Cleveland administration. During the civil war Major Rathbone was aide on the staff of General Schofield.

It is estimated that the street beggars of London collect $15,000,000 annually.

WOULD ADJUST
TRADE SNARLFrench Suggest the Creation of Joint Tariff Commission.

HOLD THE HOUR OPPORTUNE

Government at Paris Strongly Favors Program of Reciprocal Concessions. Administration at Washington Also Desires of a General Agreement to Govern Trade.

Paris, May 3.—France will welcome any action by the United States looking to the creation of a joint tariff commission, similar to the one which sat at Berlin, with a view of reaching a mutually satisfactory basis of settlement of questions in dispute. The present French government strongly favors a regime of reciprocal concessions, but at the same time it appreciates the strength of the demand of the French protectionists in favor of higher duties and the sentiment in favor of reprisals on the part of some French exporters because of what they term as vexatious administrative regulations at New York.

In order to avoid drifting into a tariff war, therefore, the government considers the time opportune for representatives of the two countries to meet and consider the whole subject. Should Ambassador White's recommendation to the Washington government proposing the appointment of a joint tariff commission be followed, it can be stated in advance that France will cordially agree to it. The French government feels grateful for the manner in which the Washington government has arranged to expedite a settlement of the complaint with regard to the valuation of porcelain shipments at New York, and in return the foreign office is doing what it can to prevent the application of the customs administration's rejection of the new form of meat certificate under the American pure food law.

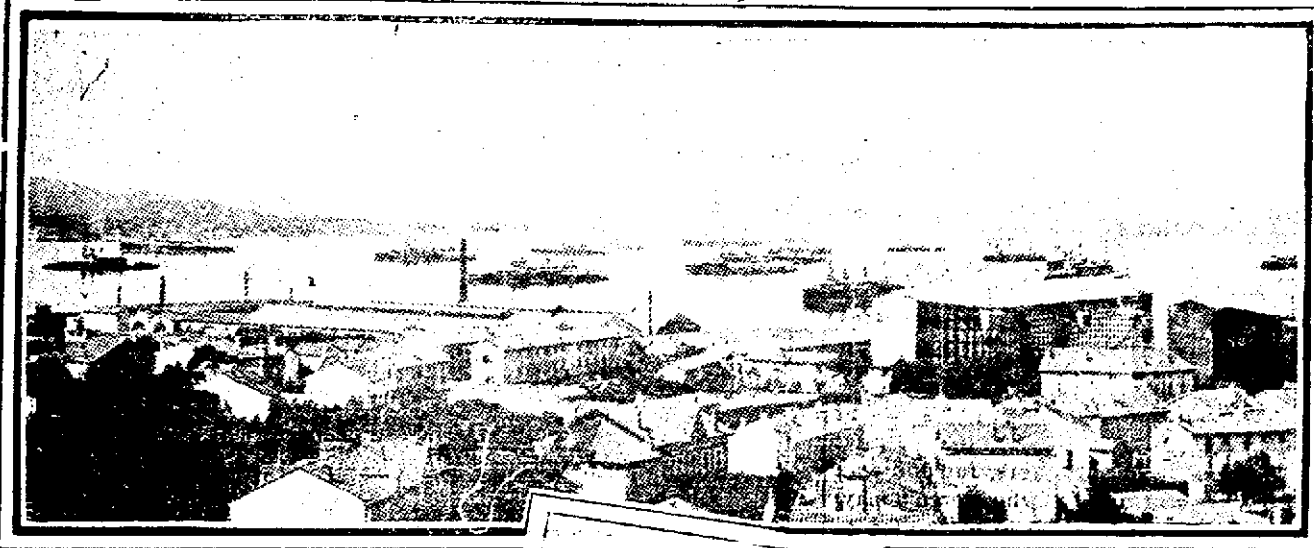

Administration Willing.

Washington, May 3.—The attitude of the French government in declining to accept as sufficient for importation purposes the tag of the agricultural department affixed to fresh meats, has convinced the state department officials that the time has arrived when the effort must be made to reach a general agreement with France to govern the trade relations between the respective governments. In view of the failure of congress in assent to any of the proposed reciprocity treaties, to which the state department has committed itself in principle, notably the case of the pending French treaty, the officials are embarrassed in laying out a course of action that will prevent a general tariff war. Their course would have become easier had congress, while declining to approve the French treaty, indicated what its own desires were. In the absence of any such declaration of policy, the state department officials are facing the necessity of finding some other method of dealing with the important question than the one which they favored at the beginning.

General Kuroki's Arrival.

Seattle, Wash., May 3.—General Kuroki and his staff, representatives of Japan to the Jamestown exposition, arrived in this city from the orient. They received a royal and picturesque welcome by both local Japanese and Americans. The general is the guest of the city. He is being feted and dined.

TOULON STRICKEN BY GREAT FIRE DISASTER.

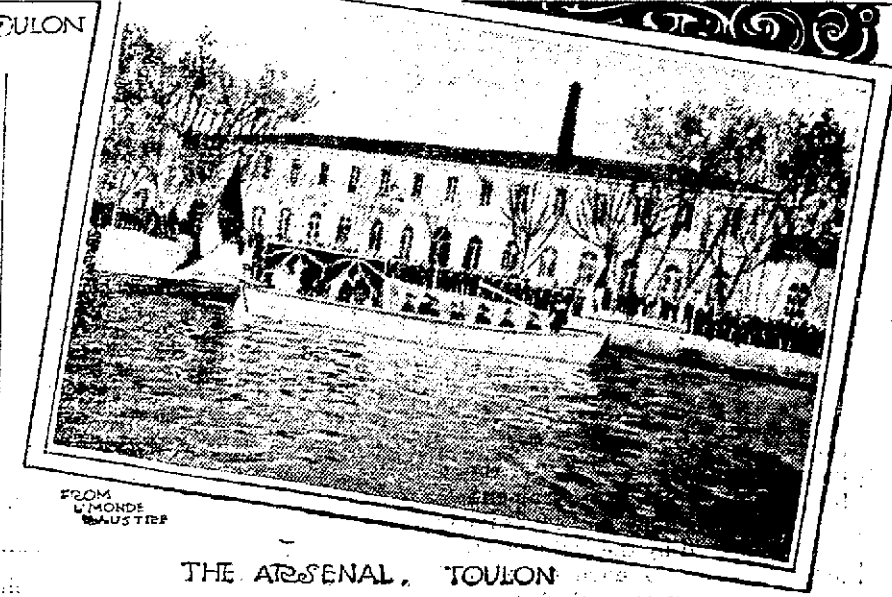

GENERAL VIEW OF TOULON FROM THE NAVY AND ARMY

Toulon, France, May 3.—For the sixth time within a few months this port has been stricken by disaster from fire, but fortunately this time the resultant damage is principally material.

Shortly after midnight a sentry on duty at the arsenal noticed the glare of flames in a storehouse used for rope yarn. He at once gave the alarm and soldiers, men from the crews of warships in port and employees of the arsenal were turned out to fight the flames. The fire spread with incredible rapidity. The buildings in the vicinity of the storehouse contained 200,000 pounds of material to clean machinery, 60,000 pounds of bakum, 5,000 sponges, enormous quantities of ballast, baskets, hampers, sail cloth, turpentine, linseed oil and other inflammables.

It is reported that more than 30 men have sustained injury from falling walls, and some of them are not expected to recover. The cause of the fire has not yet been ascertained. The finding of two pieces of fuse of a kind not used in the French navy has aroused suspicion that it was not altogether accidental. A rigorous investigation is being conducted.

REFLECTED GLORY.

It is Just as Much Fun and Less Trouble Than Real Glory.

It is a profound truth that reflected glory is far better worth having than real glory, as far as the actual fun of the thing is concerned. The man who after much struggling has won through to fame knows all the drawbacks to it and realizes that the game is hardly worth the candle. But the man whose only claim to glory lies in the fact that he is an acquaintance of the famous man has a splendid time, getting most of the kudos with none of the disadvantages. We see a great, good man, let us say Algernon Ashton, and we envy him. But we feel that his position must have its disadvantages. The strain of being universal letter provider to the papers of London must be enormous. Far better the lot of the man who merely knows Mr. Ashton and can call him Algy. Mr. Murphy, the orator, supports this view. "It is well," he says, "sometimes in speaking to treat great men's names familiarly. In bracketing yourself thus with the great men of the world reminds one of an eastern saying that there are only two creatures that can surmount the pyramids, the eagle and the snail." We know of scores of men who have acquired reputations through their friends. It is the simplest thing in the world. The wonder is that everybody does not do it, for it needs but little labor.—London Globe.

THE ISLAND OF FIRE.

Java's Geological Eccentricity the Lake of Boiling Mud.

The greatest natural wonder in Java, if not in the entire world, is the justly celebrated Gheko Kamdia Gunko or "home of the hot devils," known to the world as the "island of fire." This geological eccentricity is really a lake of boiling mud, situated at about the center of the plateau of Grobogan, and is called an island because of the great emerald sea of vegetation which surrounds it and gives it that appearance.

The "island" is about two miles in circumference and is situated at a distance of almost exactly fifty miles from Solo. Near the center of this geological freak immense columns of soft hot mud may be seen continually rising and falling like great timbers thrust through the boiling substratum by giant hands and then quickly withdrawn.

Besides the phenomenon of the boiling mud columns, there are scores of gigantic bubbles of hot slime that fill up like huge balloons and keep up a series of constant explosions, the intensity of the detonations varying with the size of the bubble. In times past, so the Javanese authorities say, there was a tall, spire-like column of baked mud on the west edge of the lake, which constantly belched a pure stream of cold water, but this has long been obliterated, and everything is now a seething mass of bubbling mud and slime, a marvel to the visitors who come from long distances to see it.

Foundation of Japan.

Every Feb. 11 is celebrated in Japan the great annual festival of Kigenetsu, the anniversary of the foundation of the empire by the first emperor, Jimmu-tenno, B. C. 660. The Japanese reckon their present era as from this date, and it was on Feb. 11, 1889, that Mutsuhito, the one hundred and twenty-first of the dynasty, promulgated the present constitution of the empire of Japan, the fundamental principle of which is clearly stated in its first article, "The empire of Japan shall be reigned over and governed by a line of emperors unbroken from ages eternal." The organization of a parliament took place in 1890, which in the Japanese reckoning would be 2550 from Jimmu's setting up his capital at Kashiwara, in the province of Yamato, which is regarded by Japanese historians as the beginning of the empire.

A Brave Man.

Nicolas, Chevalier d'Assas, a French captain in the Auvergne regiment, born at Vigan, in the Languedoc, while making a reconnaissance during the night of Oct. 15, 1760, at Klosterkamp, in Westphalia, met a column of the enemy which was advancing in silence to surprise the French army. He was ordered to keep silent or else they would kill him. D'Assas at once cried out, "A moi Auvergne—the enemy is here!" He was killed on the spot.—Bouillet's Dictionary of History.

Near Glory.

fame. Abraham Lincoln used to split rails for a man that a cousin of mine only twice removed on the mother's side afterward stole a dog often."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A Misused Wife.

It is to these women that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, comes as a blessing. When the spirits are depressed, the head and back aches, there are dragging-down pains, nervousness, sleeplessness, and reluctance to go anywhere, these are only symptoms which unless heeded, are soon followed by the worst forms of Female Complaints.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

keeps the feminine organism in strong and healthy condition. Treats inflammation, ulceration, displacements, and organic troubles. In preparing for childbirth and to carry women safely through the Change of Life it is most efficient.

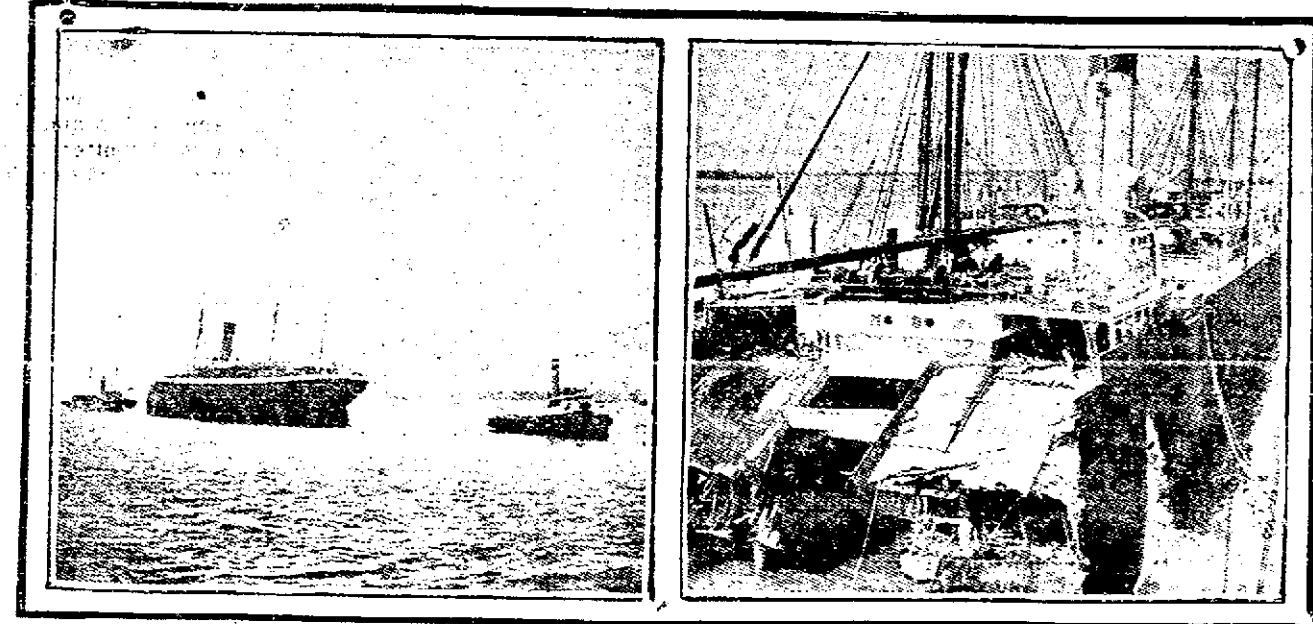

Mrs. Augustus Lyon, of East Earl, Pa., writes:—Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—"For a long time I suffered from female troubles and had all kinds of aches and pains in the lower part of back and sides. I could not sleep and had no appetite. Since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and following the advice which you gave me I feel like a new woman and I cannot praise your medicine too highly."

Mrs. Pinkham's Invitation to Women

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to write Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Out of her vast volume of experience she probably has the very knowledge that will help your case. Her advice is free and always helpful.

Most of the Suevic, which was wrecked on the English coast last month, was saved. The vessel was cut in two parts by explosions of dynamite cartridges in her sides, and the greater part, having been made watertight, was towed to Southampton, where it is drydocked, to have an end added. The other part of the vessel will probably be battered to bits by the waves in the place where she struck.

PASSENGER PATRONAGE

Very Heavy Between Newark and Utica—School Board Election
Saturday.

Utica, O., May 3—Utica patronage of the passenger trains is so great that on Saturday nights and Sunday night the conductor is unable to collect all the fares between Newark and Utica. Sometimes the rear door of the ladies' coach is locked and the conductor takes up the fares as the passengers file out the front door. Last Sunday night the rear door was open and 20 or more persons stepped off here without the formality of paying fares. The conductor paid no attention to the movement, but went on with his work, evidently thinking that when he reached as many as he could, the loss from the rest was up to the company which overworks him. On some of the trains two auditors take up fares, but no auditors are supplied with train 15. Since the company ceased giving a discount on round trip tickets, comparatively few persons buy tickets, and the making of change and punching of receipts make the work of the trains by conductors slow. A conductor states that it is not unusual for him to take up $60 cash fares between Newark and Chicago Junction.

The election on the subject of issuing bonds for school house purposes will be held at the town hall Saturday of this week, all day. While the Gourley estate offered a free site two years ago, on condition that the board put upon it a school house of a certain cost and size, it is said that $1,000 is now asked for the same land. Another location that has been discussed and which would be a beautiful one and pretty convenient for the east side of the railroad, is the Kirkpatrick land at the east end of Maple street, nearly opposite Sam Rine's.

Mrs. Randolph Iden threw a lighted match stub into her kitchen stove a few days ago. It happened that the fire had been extinguished in the stove, but the gas was still turned on. Mrs. Iden discovered the fact when the stove lids sprang to various parts of the room, but she had little time to think about it till she got through doctoring her burned face and had consulted her looking glass and learned how thoroughly trimmed her eyebrows and front hair were.

Nick Hall has bought the Joseph Jewell residence property at the railroad crossing on Mechanic street, for $2,000. It is said that Mr. Jewell has rented the Snair property, which is better known as the Orson Mantonya house, on Mechanic street. Mrs. Snair is completing repairs and veranda on her place which make it a nice home.

The Ladies of the church of Christ held their election of officers for their Aid Society last Wednesday at which Mrs. Isaac Bell was elected president, Mrs. M. Bricker vice president, Mrs. O. A. Jewell secretary, Mrs. C. C. Hughes treasurer.

When the two largest window glass factories at Mt. Vernon shut down two weeks ago, the other two announced that they would operate till June. But they, too, closed last week. The Fairview Glass company of the same city, a small bottle house, went into the hands of a receiver last week.

The German Ship "ROON" and "BREMEN"

The British Cruiser "Selkirk" and "The President"

The President "Passing Through the Lines on the Mayflower"

Norfolk, Va., May 3—For years to come the great naval display in Hampton Roads attending the opening of the Jamestown Exposition will be referred to as a record made by the United States in the progress of making a great navy. It was admittedly the greatest display ever held in American waters, and all those who witnessed it, both experts and laymen, are discussing its many details.

The commanders of the American vessels are of the opinion that the display will have a good effect abroad and inspire in other nations a higher regard for the naval strength of the United States.

ABDUCTION

OF A 17 YEAR OLD GIRL

Said He Would Go Back With the Officers if Protected From Mob Violence.

Peekskill, N. Y., May 4.—The couple placed under surveillance here today believed to be Rev. Jere Knode Cooke and Floretta Whaley, are not the missing minister and his heiress ward.

New York, May 4.—Two deputy sheriffs of Nassau county, are on the way to Peekskill, N. Y., to arrest Jere K. Cooke, unfrocked and fugitive rector of St. George's Episcopal church at Hempstead, L. I., and Floretta Whaley his 17-year-old ward, and an heiress, with whom he eloped.

The former minister will be arrested on a charge of abduction and the girl will be held as a witness. The grandmother of the girl swore out the warrant for the arrest of Cooke.

Cooke and the girl landed at Peekskill last night. They seemed perfectly happy and went to a hotel. Several persons who had seen their pictures in the newspapers recognized them and sent for the police. Cooke discovered that he was watched and when approached he admitted his identity and said he was ready to go back to Long Island if assured of protection against mobs or individual enemies.

He said he had been threatened with death in an anonymous letter before he left Hempstead.

MAN IS BEATEN
DECEIVED BY WOMAN

New York, May 4.—Joseph Medino, said to be a wealthy Cuban, was badly beaten and robbed of $300 and jewelry valued at much more, in the Bronx Friday night. The Cuban, who speaks little English, boarded a subway train. On the train he became acquainted with a young woman. When he reached his station in the Bronx the young woman also left the train, and he started to see her home across the fields. In a deserted spot he says he was suddenly attacked by two men who, with the help of the young woman, robbed him.

Mexico City, May 4.—Guatemala has apologized to the Mexican government for insinuating that the Mexican legation at Guatemala City was harboring the men who are suspected of attempting to assassinate President Cabrera of Guatemala. Minister of Foreign Affairs Mariscal received this intelligence in a cablegram from Minister Gamboa, now at Guatemala City. The incident is now closed to the satisfaction of the Mexican government. The question of extradition of Jose Lima, charged with complicity in the assassination of the former president of Guatemala, Manuel Barrillas, while the latter was under the protection of the Mexican flag, is still pending.

DUN'S REVIEW.

Spring Retail Trade Backward Because of the Weather.

New York, May 4.—R. G. Dun & Company's weekly trade review says: Spring retail trade is backward because of an unusually late season, and tardy distribution of merchandise is also causing complaint of delay in mercantile collections, but there is confidence that most of the postponed business will be made up when thermal conditions become normal. Dealers purchased freely from manufacturers in anticipation of a record-breaking season, and deliveries are still coming from the mills and factories, shipments being facilitated by improved traffic conditions. Manufacturers are active in all leading industries, most plants being operated full time, and the outlook in the steel business could hardly be better. Projected building operations promise a good demand for all materials, but numerous small labor disputes retard activity in this department. Only favorable reports are received from the iron and steel industry.

Alfred R. Crow, 14, and Harold Crow, 12, charged with having forged a check in New York state, were arrested at San Francisco.

JURY IN HAYWOOD CASE TO BE HOUSED.

BOISE, IDAHO, May 4.—All is in readiness for the trial of Haywood, charged with conspiracy in the murder of former Governor Steunenberg, which starts next Thursday. Both sides state today that the famous trial will start on schedule. Judge Wood who will preside, will try to limit the evidence to the actual murder of Steunenberg, and thus prevent involving the trial in all the bloodshed which has occurred in the last decade in the conflict between the western miners and mine owners. This city is filling fast with witnesses and others interested in what promises to be the most sensational trial in years.

BOISE, IDAHO, May 4.—The jury which is to try William Haywood, the first of the accused in the Steunenberg case, will be kept housed during the trial. The law of Idaho provides that such juries shall be kept in seclusion, and the higher courts have always insisted on a strict compliance with this provision. Therefore, rather than take any chances with the publicity of a hotel in this case, Sheriff Shad Holgin has hired a house for them. The house, standing on a near lawn and garden, is just across the street at the rear of the Ada county court house, and within 300 feet of the court room.

MEETING.

Newspapers There Blame American Sailors for Starting a Free-
for-all Melee.

Washington, May 4.—The difficulty between the police in Santiago, Cuba, and the seamen from the cruiser Tacoma, Tuesday night, was brought up by Secretary Taft at the cabinet meeting, the secretary laying before the president all information he has received from Governor Macgoon. Macgoon reported to Secretary Taft that in conformity with the secretary's direction that an independent investigation be had, he has dispatched Lieutenant Colonel Robert L. Bullard, Eighth infantry, to the scene of trouble, and pending his report nothing will be done.

Blame American Sailors.

Havana, May 4.—Santiago news papers containing accounts of the encounter between police and sailors of the Tacoma have reached here. They declare unanimously that intoxicated soldiers began the disturbance by brutally assaulting Captain Lay. The captain fired his revolver in the air to summon assistance. When the police arrived there ensued a pitched battle, the sailors using pistols and knives.

American Negro Assaulted.

Puerto Cortez, May 4.—General Davis, an American negro, was brutally assaulted at Puerto Cortez by Nicaraguan soldiers, and may die. Commander Fullam of the United States gunboat Marietta ordered the arrest of Nicaraguan officers and soldiers, and if the man dies they will be tried for murder. Fullam has assumed charge. Davis is not an officer. His name is "General."

MRS. ROOSEVELT

Washington, May 4.—It is learned today that Mrs. Roosevelt narrowly escaped death yesterday afternoon. The yacht Sylph upon which she was returning from a cruise down the Potomac crashed into the dock at the navy yard, smashing the yacht's launch like an egg shell between the hull and dock and brought the heavy flagstaff to the deck. Mrs. Roosevelt was standing three feet from where the great beam fell.

Vessels Are Far Out in the Ice and Their Names Are Not Definitely Known.

Halifax, N. S., May 4.—More than 3,000 passengers in three trans-Atlantic steamers are reported in imminent peril in a gigantic ice field that blocks Cabot Strait between Cape Breton and New Foundland. The huge liners appear likely to be crushed by the grinding ice.

If they are it is not considered possible for the passengers to escape death.

The ice field is over 50 miles wide. Besides the passengers the crews aggregating 1,500 are in peril. The vessels in peril are reported the Allan liner Ontario, the Dominion liner Vancouver, and the Allan liner Ionian.

There is no absolute certainty about the names of the ships as they are far back in the ice fields and the names cannot be seen.

Lynching Sequel to Assault.

Shreveport, La., May 3.—Information has just reached this city of an assault upon an eight-year-old white girl, the daughter of a well-known planter of Bossier Point, and the subsequent lynching of a 17-year-old negro, Silas Ealy, accused of the deed. The negro, when taken to the scene of the crime by a party of about 12 citizens, confessed and was hanged to a nearby tree.

Well-Known Horseman.

New York, May 4.—Monroe Salisbury, a well-known horse owner and breeder of San Francisco, died here. Mr. Salisbury came here several weeks ago for treatment for cancer. A daughter, Mrs. T. D. Boardman, started for San Francisco with the body.

Against Comic Supplement.

New York, May 4.—A campaign of education directed against the comic sections of Sunday newspapers was decided upon at a session of the International Kindergarten union. It was voted to provide funds for the distribution of circulars to parents calling upon them to bar the Sunday supplement from their homes. A subcommittee of the best children's writers and artists is to be selected to devise a proper substitute for the comic. Miss Fannie Belle Curtis of Brooklyn was elected president and Miss Anna H. Little of Dayton, O., corresponding secretary and treasurer.

A LITTLE GIRL
DROWNS IN FEEDER

SIX YEAR OLD DAUGHTER OF MR.
AND MRS. E. R. CARTER
MEETS DEATH.

Was Starting With Children to Gather Wild Flowers When the Accident Occurred.

A sad case of drowning occurred at about 4 o'clock Friday afternoon. The six year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Carter of 378 Maple avenue, was invited by two small companions to go and gather wild flowers, and while the little girl went to her home to get ready the other children went on ahead.

It appears that the Carter child went to hunt for the children who had started and in attempting to cross the old feeder fell in and got beyond her depth. She was found drowned in about two feet of water. The body was taken from the water by Miss Kate McFarland, who is employed at the Yaus factory.

The funeral will take place Sunday and the body will be taken to Atlas, Ohio on B. and O. train No. 14. The father is a railroad man and the parents have the sympathy of everyone.

Mr. Carter, who is a B. and O. fireman, was in Columbus at the time of the drowning and he was brought to Newark in an hour.

DAM GAVE WAY
WORKMEN ENGULFED
MANY ARE DEAD

Chihuahua, Mexico, May 4.—One of the great walls of the Chiviscar dam suddenly gave way, engulfing nearly 40 men under the enormous weight of masonry and water. Between 15 and 20 of the workmen are dead, 13 injured and several others unaccounted for. Some of the injured will die. The disaster is the last of a large number which have recently claimed nearly 200 victims in this state, and mostly in the neighborhood of Chihuahua. The authorities are making a thorough investigation into the present catastrophe and will severely punish those upon whom they place the blame. According to the version of the affair which reached here, the men were working on a foundation close to the foot of the main rampart of the dam, which had already been constructed. The main wall was weak and gave out under water pressure.

Niles, May 4.—W. H. Smiley, aged 51, a prominent attorney and inventor of the Smiley automatic printing press, died suddenly last night.

William S. Allen, a member of the New York stock exchange, filed a petition in bankruptcy in the United States court.

BOY'S BODY

(Bulletin.)

Dover, Del., May 4.—The body of little Horace Marvin Jr., the long missing son of Dr. Horace Marvin, of Kitt's Hammock, was found this afternoon. The body was found on Dr. Marvin's farm by Oliver Pleasanton. It was in a fair state of preservation. The body was lying face downward in a pool of water left by the recent rains. It is believed the boy was murdered.

SNOWS IN WEST
DELAY TRAINS

Chicago, May 4.—Reports from Central, Western and Southwestern states this morning show uniformly cold weather, with enough snow in Nebraska to delay trains. At several points the storm was almost a blizzard.

In Chicago the snow is an inch deep.

In many points in the west and southwest the fruit and berry crops have been killed.

It is generally believed however that the snow and rain will benefit the grain crops.

Irish International Exhibit.

Dublin, May 4.—The Irish international exhibit, which opened here today, is an event of far-reaching interest to Ireland. Men of all classes, creeds and politics have worked indefatigably, a guarantee fund of nearly $1,000,000 has been raised, and an exposition eclipsing anything previously attempted in Ireland is assured. Elaborate arrangements are being made by the English railway and steamship companies to transport visitors to the capital, and their officials say they are prepared to carry between 40,000 and 50,000 passengers daily during July and August. Foremost among the foreign nations participating are France, Italy and Japan, and the colonies have sent fine exhibits.

NEWARK'S LIVE ONES

Probably no man in Newark is better known to the business life of the city than John C. Brennan, of the firm of Brennan & Nutter, general contractors. Mr. Brennan has been a resident of Newark since 1874 and from that time to the present day, his name has figured many times on the city's business history, always to his credit.

Mr. Brennan is secretary and treasurer of the Newark Telephone company, a firm organized by Mr. Brennan seven years ago for the manufacture of high class furniture. Since its organization, the company has been prosperous. He is vice president of the Newark Telephone company, and one of the heavy stockholders. In the financial world he is a director of the Licking County Building and Savings Association.

At one time Mr. Brennan was connected with the firm of Tenney & Morzan, wholesale grocers, and was for many years in the retail grocery business. Several years ago Mr. Brennan served two terms as treasurer of Newark township.

He is a popular member of the Newark lodge of Elks and has been one of the active members in that order for several years. Mr. Brennan is also a member of the Knights of Columbus.

COX DECLARES FOR FORAKER

And Against the Primaries—Dick and Brown Hold a Conference
at Akron.

Cincinnati, O., May 4.—George B. Cox, who retired recently as Hamilton county leader, issued a statement concerning the holding of a state primary election this year. He said he was simply expressing his opinion as a citizen on the question as it appeared to him, and it did not mean his return into active politics. Mr. Cox said:

"In the coming municipal election the Taft-Foraker fight must have no part. If it does it might mean the defeat of the Republican party. Separate the two issues; settle the one before taking up the other. It seems to me that the Republican party is facing an entirely new problem, for never before in the history of the party has Ohio had two presidential candidates, and this situation calls for the splitting of issues.

"Suppose, just for the sake of argument, we unite the municipal and national issues. Here is Taft—or Foraker. Suppose, now, the Hamilton county organization indorses Taft, say. The probability is the Foraker bunch would bolt and the municipal election might be lost, for the sake of something that can be done by a different method. The only way to carry out both successfully is to get the city election off our hands. Then we can take up the other."

As to a statement credited to him while in the east, that the Republican organization in Hamilton county was against Taft, he said: "What I said was the local organization in the local fight would take a stand for neither one nor the other. I can't pretend to say whether Foraker or Taft will be the support of the organization."

Taft to Speak Out.

Washington, May 4.—Secretary Taft, it is expected, will break his political silence for the first time since he has been regarded as a receptive candidate for the Republican nomination for the presidency, in a speech which he probably will deliver at Tulsa, Okla., on June 6, on the occasion of the assembling of the first Republican state convention. The secretary has accepted an invitation to attend that convention. In Secretary Taft's opinion the political campaign in Oklahoma will be a hot one, and probably will determine for a number of years to come the political complexion of the state.

What Senator Dick Says.

Akron, O., May 4.—Walter Brown of Toledo, chairman of the state Republican committee, was in conference with Senator Dick, with whom he talked over Ohio politics of a national character. At the conclusion of the conference, Senator Dick said there was nothing to give out. He said that as for himself he believed it unwise to hold a state primary election in Ohio this year and that he did not believe the managers of either Secretary Taft or Senator Foraker will ask for one.

Brown at the Capital.

Columbus, O., May 4.—Walter Brown of Toledo, chairman of the Republican state central committee, was here on a peace mission, endeavoring to harmonize the factional differences that have grown out of the Foraker-Taft controversy in Ohio. Mr. Brown conferred while here with John R. Malloy, secretary of the state executive committee, and Orrin B. Gould, a member of the state central committee. He declined to discuss the results of the conference.

FORAKER IS SILENT.

Cincinnati, O., May 4.—Senator Foraker today refused to discuss Cox's interview yesterday or to talk politics at all.

NO ARRESTS MADE

Cleveland, May 4.—No arrests were made today in the mysterious murder of little Alex Hoenig. Coroner Burke today found that the sawdust drawn into the child's lungs in the death struggle was the same in texture and appearance with that in the shed back of Coln's butcher shop, a few feet from where the body was found.

Supposed desperado killed at W. J. Lows, Cal., after running fight with a posse of officers, was identified as Count Otto von Waldstein of Austria, a noble family. Police took him for a man wanted for murder.

on each shoulder to give fullness. These are concealed by the bertha which is also made of the eyelet embroidery and the waist is finished by a collar of the same. CAPTAIN G. A. LEMERT.

(Larned, Kas., Tiller and Toiler.) George Alexander Lemert was born at Dresden, Ohio, May 13, 1836, and died at his home in Logan township, this county, Tuesday, April 23, at 4:30 o'clock, at the age of 70 years, 11 months and 10 days. He was married to Margaret Thomas, January 3, 1861, and leaves her a widow, and one daughter, Mrs. May Wilkes of St. Louis, three half-brothers and one half-sister to survive him. Captain Lemert enlisted for the Civil war in 1862 as a lieutenant, and soon rose to the command of captain of Rosecrank's staff, and was afterwards promoted to topographical engineer.

The deceased was a descendant of Lewis Case, U. S. senator from Michigan, and also U. S. ambassador to France during Polk's administration. He moved to Pawnee in the spring of 1878 and has resided here since. Captain Lemert was quite popular in politics and was an ardent worker for any cause which he deemed right and just. Death came to him as a relief from years of suffering, and while his thoughts clung to his home and loved ones, yet he was willing to go, trusting the care of his wife and daughter to Savior and Comforter.

Constipation

Baked sweet apples, with some people, bring prompt relief for Constipation. With others, however, all-wheat bread will have the same effect. Nature undoubtedly has a vegetable remedy to relieve every ailment known to man, if physicians can but find Nature's way to health. And this is strikingly true with regard to Constipation.

The bark of a certain tree in California—Cascara Sagrada—offers a most excellent aid to this end. But, combined with Egyptian Senna, Senna Elix. Bark, and Extract of Prunes, etc., this same Cascara bark is given its greatest possible power to correct constipation. A wholesome Candy Tablet, called Lax-ets, is now made at the Dr. Shoop Laboratories, from this ingenious and most effective combination. It is a pleasant, palatable, Bile-stimulant, and, in fact, is indeed prompt and satisfying.

No griping, no unpleasant after effects are experienced, and Lax-ets are put up in beautiful lithographed metal boxes at 5 cents and 25 cents per box.

For something new, nice, economical and effective, try a box of

A fire was discovered last night at about 7:30 in the third story of Mr.
Gleichauf's residence, 516 Hudson time, and but for prompt action of the fire department which arrived on have proved a very disastrous fire.

Constipation

Baked sweet apples, with some people, bring prompt relief for Constipation. With others
they will have the same effect.
Nature undoubtedly has a vegetable remedy to relieve every ailment known to man, if physicians can but find Nature's way to health. And this is strikingly true with regard to Constipation.

The bark of a certain tree in California—Cascara Sagrada—has been found to be the most excellent and safe remedy for Constipation. It is entirely natural and does not injure the system.
It is the only vegetable remedy that is so effective and so safe.

PATRONS AND MEMBERS OF THE NEWARK FESTIVAL ASSOCIATION

That the Newark Spring Festival to be held in Newark from May 21-24 is meeting with hearty support is evident from the list of names appended.
It is a big proposition to bring such artists as Mme. Schumann-Heink, Mr.
Otto Meyer, Mme. Genevieve Clark-
Wilson, Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson
Wilson, Alexander Von Pielitz, Franz
Wagner, Cecil James, Ellis P. Legler, and Arthur Leroy Tebbis, and such organizations as the Chicago Symphony Orchestra of 50 men, to say nothing of the Newark, Granville, and Patas-kala choruses and orchestra which have been training all the year. As Mr. Otto Meyer said in an interview in Friday's papers, there has been a great change in Newark's support of good music, and it is especially shown by the way in which Newark people are paying six dollars and a half for patrons tickets and three dollars for membership tickets to the Festival.
These may be secured at A. L. Rawlings' music store now and at Collins' drug store. They include all the festival concerts and attractions. Special tickets for the concert in which Mr.
Meyers appears are on sale at Collins'
drug store.

IN EVERY HOME.

The following simple prescription, writes a noted authority, should be made known to every family. While it is a simple home-made mixture, it forms a powerful tonic and vitalizing agent to the kidneys, forcing them to filter and eliminate from the blood all acids and waste, restoring the full count, or 95 per cent. of Red Corpuscles.

Here it is, and now is the time to take it: Fluid Extract Dandelion one-half ounce, Compound Kargon one ounce, Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla three ounces. The dose is one teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime. These harmless ingredients can be obtained at nominal cost from any good pharmacy and anyone can mix them by shaking well in a bottle.

Noted medical authorities now recognize this as a blood cleanser and system tonic par excellence, because of its gentle, though almost certain action in the treatment of Rheumatism, skin and facial eruptions and other miserable blood afflictions for which the kidneys are responsible. At this time of year the blood becomes sour and filled with poisons and acids, which the skin pores failed to eliminate during the cold weather, adding this additional work to the kidneys, which, overtaxed, become inactive and sluggish and require just such an invig-orant or regulator.

Mix this and try it, and note
the remarkable improvement in your health.

UNHAPPINESS DISPELLED.

Men and Women Unanimous About It.

Many women weep and wail and refuse to be comforted because their once magnificent tresses have become thin and faded. Many men incline to profanity because the flies bite through the thin patches on their craniums. It will be good news to the miserable of both sexes to learn that Newbro's Herpicide has been placed upon the market. This is the new scalp germicide and antiseptic that acts by destroying the germ or microbe that is the underlying cause of all hair destruction. Herpicide is a new preparation, made after a new formula on an entirely new principle. Anyone who has tried it will testify as to its worth. Try it yourself and be convinced. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps of this city, who at present fills an important position at the Halsey for some years. He enlisted on May

PRESENTATION OF GOLD WATCH TO J. S. LOUGHMAN

BY THE DEMOCRATIC STATE EX-ECUTIVE COMMITTEE SAT-URDAY AFTERNOON.

County Committee Recommended A.
J. Crilly, Esq., For County
Board of Elections.

At the meeting of the Licking County Democratic Executive Committee held in the office of Attorney
B. F. McDonald, the chairman of the committee, on Saturday, occurred one of those pleasant little incidents that serve more than anything else to express the appreciation of good work, faithful and efficiently performed.
Last year the Democratic State Committee offered as a prize to the committeeman of the township in each county showing the largest gain on the vote for the Democratic candidate for Secretary of State, Mr. Hoskins, over the vote cast for Governor Patison the year before, a fine gold watch, suitably engraved. While several townships in the county made handsome prize, the prize was awarded to Mr. Jacob S. Loughman of Hopewell township, which has carried off the prize on several occasions.
At the meeting of the County Executive Committee held on Saturday, every member was present with the exception of Mr. E. W. Crayton, who is in Arkansas. Mr. B. F. McDonald, as chairman of the committee, on behalf of the Democratic State Committee, presented Mr. Loughman with the watch, which is a most handsome one and a fitting testimonial of "Well done, good and faithful servant."
Mr. Loughman responded in a neat speech, in which he thanked the donors for the gift. He said, however, that when he worked all day on election day, without his dinner, he did so for the good of the party and not with the expectation of winning a prize. He said that he had voted the Democratic ticket ever since he was a voter, and expected to continue doing so. His remarks were thoroughly Democratic and were roundly applauded.

On the back of the watch was engraved the following inscription:
"Jacob S. Loughman, Committeeman,
from Democratic State Executive Committee, 1906."
After the presentation of the watch the committee went into executive session and transacted considerable business of importance.

A. J. Crilly, Esq., was recommended for appointment on the County Board of Elections.

CITIZENS KICK ON CONTRACTORS' CARELESSNESS

EXCAVATIONS AND OBSTRU-CTIONS NOT SUFFICIENTLY LIGHTED.

Narrow Escape From Serious Accident Friday Night on Eleventh Street.

Complaints are coming in in numbers to the offices in the city building, principally the Board of Service regarding the failure of the water works contractors to place a sufficient number of lights on their excavations and on their various street obstructions.

One man complained to President Christian Saturday morning that he had driven into a heavy iron bar driven into the pavement on Eleventh street. His horse was badly injured.
Other complaints have been received that the lights on the excavations are insufficient in number and though frequent requests have been made to the contractors to increase the number, thus far they have ignored the orders.

It is probable that some legal action may be taken by some of the citizens who have suffered from the neglect of the contractors.

Widespread complaints are made all over the city against the practical blockade of North Fourth street, which many people claim is unnecessary.

THIS AND THAT

Men who sell garden seeds are blamed this year for displaying their goods in full view of the public six weeks too soon. But their stocks were all large enough to provide for replanting.

The fellow who laughs last is he who is slowest to see the joke.

George B. Cov has come out for Foraker in the conflict with Taft and the fight may be expected to get exceedingly warm in Cincinnati. With the two Tafts and Nicky Longworth on one side and the fighting Foraker-Cox following on the other there will be plenty of amusement for Democrats.

The governors of North and South Carolina had a meeting recently at which not a word was said about the long interval between drinks. In fact both governors are absolute teetotalers.

It's very accommodating for a U.
S. president to act as a presidential

Ex-Gov. Pennypacker, when he was in office had the Pennsylvania Legislature pass a libel law that prevented newspapers from any criticism whatever of public officials in that state.
But the defunct Governor is out of office now and the Legislature has repealed his law which practically prohibited the freedom of the press.
Pennsylvania people conclude that they still want newspapers.

Congress made provision for the admission of Oklahoma into the Union and the new state has framed its constitution which is to be ratified by its people. But it is now known Oklahoma will be Democratic, and Republican politicians are conferring with Roosevelt about keeping the new state out of the Union until after the Presidential election. Of course Roosevelt will be wholly actuated by that
"square deal" of his.

He went into the Penny Arcade this morning and spent ten cents to hear "Wait till the sun shines, Nellie," and in consideration of the weather we are experiencing, he wasn't so crazy.

MR. J. S. BEECHER BUYS BUSINESS OF JAMES MILLS

James Cadillac Mills has sold out his business to Mr. J. S. Beecher after ten years of successful business in dealing in bicycles, automobiles, repairs, etc., having started in 1896, with a bicycle, and has succeeded in enlarging it to its present volume.

Mr. Mills has a cottage at Buckeye Lake Park and with his family will go there for the summer and enjoy his well earned rest.

Next August Mr. Mills will go to his old home in England and visit his mother, supplementing this trip with a tour of the continent and the Holy Land.

In October next he will take a position with the Cadillac company as sales agent, placing agents in large cities west of Denver.

Mr. Beecher, his successor, is a well known Newark citizen and an old B. & O. conductor, and has two sons who are prominent socially, and they will take an active part in the business. The new firm will carry the same line as did Mr. Mills and as the business is so well established the garage so complete and service o-good, they can surely make a success of their new venture.

All settlements for the old firm will be made by Mr. Mills, who has our best wishes for the future.

Cure for Drunkenness

Urine Treatment is to be Used at Home Without Publicity or Loss of Time From Business.

Thousands of persons who really want to quit the use of whiskey or beer, realize that they cannot do so without medical help, yet they can not afford the time or perhaps the money to go to a sanatorium. Happily a new cure for drunkenness has been discovered which is to be taken at home and costs less than the average drinker will spend in a day for drinks.

In using Urine there is absolutely no publicity, as the remedy is sold by the leading druggists in nearly every city and town, or it can be sent by mail. Sure relief is positive when Urine is used. So uniformly successful is this treatment that in every box is a registered guarantee which entitles you to a refund of your money if Urine fails to effect a cure.

Urine, in two forms, No. 1, a secret remedy, absolutely tasteless, and odorless which can be given in food or drink without the patient's knowledge; No. 2 in pill form for those who wish to be cured. The price of either form is $1 a box. Send to the Urine Co., Washington, D. C., for free booklet and consultation
blank.

The desire for liquor is soon destroyed after Urine treatment is commenced, and before long the patient is freed from the terrible drink craving, and the drink will not be missed.

Urine is for sale by F. D. Hall, Newark, Ohio.

Relief

From

Catarrh.

CONGRESSMAN MEEKISON COMMENDS PE-RU-NA.

"I have used several bottles of Peru-na and I feel greatly benefited thereby from my catarrh of the head. I feel encouraged to believe that if I use it a short time longer I will be fully able to eradicate the disease of thirty years' standing."—David Meekison.

OTHER REMARKABLE CURES.

Mr. Jacob L. Davis, Galena, Stone county, Mo., writes: "I have been in bad health for thirty-seven years, and after taking twelve bottles of your Peru-na I am cured." Mr. A. E. Kidd, well-known architect, 5477 Jefferson Ave., Chicago, Ill., writes: "I have had catarrh over half of my life. I tried nearly every catarrh remedy advertised, beside a great many physicians' treatments, all of which failed. I had heard and read of Peru-na and decided to try it. I have taken seven bottles of it and weigh 172 pounds."

A SINCERE RECOMMENDATION.

Mr. D. C. Prosser, R. F. D. No. 2, Shelby, Oceana Co., Mich., writes: "Two years ago I was badly afflicted with catarrh of the stomach. I had had a run of typhoid fever, was very depleted. I could find nothing I could eat without causing distress and sour stomach. Finally I came to the conclusion that I had catarrh of the stomach and seeing Peru-na advertised, began to take it. It helped me soon, and after taking three or four bottles I was entirely cured of stomach trouble,
and can now eat anything."

Successful Baking

A Talk with Housewives

If you want to have light, tempting, appetizing biscuits, waffles, griddle cakes, doughnuts—delicate and delicious cakes, and all the other good things in which baking powder is used, try Egg Baking Powder.

Egg Baking Powder insures successful baking. Your quick steps in the haste of preparation or the accidental slamming of the oven door will not result in fallen cake or heavy biscuits.

Egg Baking Powder is made from dried white of egg and wheat phosphates. When water is added, the resulting leavening gas is caught and held in tiny globules by the egg albumen, and it can't get away until your baking has progressed far beyond the danger line where ordinary baking powder "goes dead."

These are facts which a trial will prove. Another thing that's mighty important is that Egg Baking Powder has no cream of tartar, tartaric acid, alum or other harmful substances, that keep the digestive organs in a constant state of irritation and cause dyspepsia. We will give $5,000 to anyone who can prove that this is not absolutely true.

Bad baking powder causes many a kitchen tragedy. Think of company coming for dinner and the baking failed! Biscuits like brickbats! Cake ruined! Muffins wearing a soggy look! Only a lot of uninviting and indigestible cookery to show for a whole day's work and worry. No danger of this if you use "Egg."

You save one-third the eggs and all the worry when you use sweet, pure, wholesome and nourishing Egg Baking Powder. Best grocers sell it. Write us for the Egg Cook Book—it's FREE.

GRANVILLE NEWS

Granville, May 4.—Something less than two weeks ago Mr. P. B. Smith, a prominent and well-to-do resident of this place, left for Austin, Ill., a suburb of Chicago, for the purpose of disposing of some property, and that is the last that has been seen of him. It was his intention while there to visit his step-daughter, Miss Mabel Butterfield, who is a student at the Hull House Mission Training school there. For several days after Mr. Smith left Granville, Mrs. Smith received a letter from him, but they suddenly ceased, and then she received a letter from her daughter, making inquiries regarding him, saying she had only heard from him once. Mrs. Smith left for Chicago Wednesday night.

Mrs. Smith, in a letter to Mrs. Hunt, matron of Shepardson College, says that immediately on her arrival in Chicago she repaired to the hotel where Mr. Smith had registered. She says she found Mr. Smith's suit case, and was informed that Mr. Smith had not been at the hotel since the previous Friday.

When last seen Mr. Smith is known to have had in his possession a considerable amount of money, and by some foul play is feared, while others think he was suddenly taken ill. He has been a sufferer from dizzy spells for a number of years, brought on from an injury to his head, and it is thought he may have been taken with one of these spells, and is now being cared for by some one. He had, however, plenty of papers on his person to establish his identity, and his family could easily have been notified of his condition. The whole affair is veiled in deep mystery.

Henry Williams, a well known young farmer, residing a short distance north of town, is laid up at his home, suffering with an acute attack of inflammatory rheumatism. Mr. Williams has been a victim every few months of this dreaded disease, but this attack seems worse than all. His many friends hope that he will soon recover.

One of the most enjoyable social events of the past week was the reception given by the members of the faculty of Shepardson College and the students to the parents of the students in Doane gymnasium on Friday evening. There was a large number in attendance and a most enjoyable time was had. During the evening punch was served.

When you take a drink of water, think of Chalybeate Spring Water. It is pure. Phone 7111 Red.

ANOTHER SUIT

WILL BE FILED AGAINST THE STANDARD OIL COMPANY AT FINDLAY.

Circuit Court Interprets Two Cent Fare Law—Buckeye State News Briefs.

Toledo, O., May 4.—A. J. Steele, an oil operator of North Baltimore, O., will file a suit at Findlay against the Standard Oil and its directors and subsidiary companies in Ohio and Indiana to oust the companies from their charters and to have a receiver appointed to wind up their business. The plaintiff charges that the defendant directors entered into a conspiracy to control the oil trade of the country, and are operating in violation of the anti-trust laws of the United States. The petition is practically identical with the one filed by Attorney George Phelps at Findlay on Tuesday and withdrawn by him on Thursday.

Additional Dime Illegal.

Bellefontaine, O., May 4.—The plan of the railroads to compel passengers to buy their tickets before boarding trains by requiring them to pay an additional 10 cents when cash fare is paid, was declared contrary to the 2-cent fare law of Ohio in a decision of the circuit court rendered in the case of Marion Miller against the Toledo & Ohio Central railway. The court held that, although a receipt for 10 cents had been tendered Miller, entitling him to recover the excess within 30 days, the legal rate of fare was being exceeded.

Kneel Before Oncoming Train.

Cincinnati, O., May 4.—In an attitude of supplication, John A. Cockrane knelt before an oncoming Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton passenger train at a street crossing here. The engineer had no chance to stop, and the man was hurled beneath the steel wheels and ground into a bleeding mass. The tragedy was enacted before the eyes of George Renner, the crossing flagman, and William Clark, a brakeman, but they were powerless to drag the man from the tracks.

Wertz Law to Be Put into Effect.

Columbus, O., May 4.—Governor Harris announced that the Wertz law, abolishing prison contract labor, will be put into effect at once at the state reformatory at Mansfield. At that institution prisoners will be put to work making shoes and brooms on state account, the output no longer to be sold in the open market in competition with free labor, but to be issued to the penal and charitable institution of the state on the plan for interchange of commodities.

Ellis' Denial.

Columbus, O., May 4.—Attorney General Wade Ellis denied that he had offered to assist George B. Scroggins, manager of the international policy-holders' committee, who was arrested in New York on charges of forgery in connection with the election of directors of the New York Life Insurance company. A dispatch from New York stated that Scroggins had received an offer of assistance from Attorney General Ellis, but that it had been declined.

Condition of Wheat.

Columbus, O., May 4.—The state crop report for May 1 issued by the state board of agriculture shows the condition of the Ohio wheat crop as bad. It puts its condition down at only 74 per cent of a full average. This is 13 points below the condition as given by the report issued April 1.

Sues Dredging Trust.

Cleveland, O., May 4.—Louis P. Smith, of the L. P. & J. A. Smith & Company, Great Lakes dredgers, filed suit in common pleas court here asking for the dissolution of a dredging trust, which he says exists. He declares that the Great Lakes Dredging and Dock company, which took over the L. P. & J. A. Smith company of this city and the Lorain Dredge company, are in an agreement which is contrary to the Valentine anti-trust law. John Sherwin, Eben H. Bourne, Charles A. Post, Caleb E. Goven, Thomas H. Wilson, James A. Smith and George D. Crowley are named as defendants.

Proctor Fears Rabies.

Cincinnati, O., May 4.—As the result of a scratch which he received from one of his pet dogs at his country home recently, William Cooper Proctor, president of the Proctor & Gamble company, has left for New York to take treatment in the Pasteur institute. Every dog owned by Mr. Proctor was found to be afflicted. The disease has spread to practically all the canines in Glendale, where Mr. Proctor lived.

Twenty Years.

Washington C. H., O., May 4.—Judge Burringer sentenced Brooks Holland, a notorious negro desperado and ex-convict, to 20 years in the penitentiary for shooting Policeman Bell with intent to kill.

Released on Bond.

Ironton, O., May 4.—Captain John Davis, who shot and killed Dr. Wayne McCoy at South Point Wednesday night, and who later surrendered to the authorities, has been released on $5,000 bond.

Woodenware Plant Burns.

Escanaba, Mich., May 4.—Fire which started in an overheated dry kiln, destroyed the greater portion of the Escanaba Manufacturing Co.'s woodenware plant, causing a loss of $75,000. The plant was one of the largest of its kind in the country.

YEAR OLD HEIFER PRODUCES HER KIND

Mr. C. G. Walker, one of the prominent and enterprising farmers of Newton township, is the owner of a fine Jersey heifer, one-year-old, ten days old, that has just given birth to a fine calf. This is something unusual and beats the record for Licking county.

There is more truth in this statement of the country than of other districts put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be made for a good many years. It is pronounced to be the best of the soil produced here, and by constantly feeding to care with a treatment pronounced to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment.

Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally, it acts from the drops to a constitutional cure, it acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer no limited outlets for any case of Catarrh. Sold for cash only, and by mail.

LODGE NEWS

A special meeting of St. Luke's Commandery will be held on Monday evening, May 13, for work in the Order of the Temple.

B. P. O. E.

Backed by human spirit and a request from President Roosevelt the grand exalted ruler of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, will request that the next grand lodge which will meet in Philadelphia in July to include in the constitution of the order, directions that no more elks' teeth may be procured for use as insignia of membership.

The grand lodge will also be requested to act looking toward the entire disuse of the teeth as charms, cuff buttons and badges.

The grand exalted ruler has written the secretaries of the different lodges throughout the country, in which he stated that it was at the request of the President that action be taken. Mr. Roosevelt has asserted that all the elks are being killed and their carcasses left to decay as soon as the teeth and horns are removed, and the animals are fast becoming extinct, because of the great demand for teeth and mounted heads.

By many it will be considered rather unfair to compel the disuse of the teeth already mounted, as many of them are costly specimens, some being handsomely and expensively studded with diamonds and other valuable stones.

Pathfinders.

Pathfinder lodge No. 79 will meet in regular session at the K. of P. hall No. 13, Monday evening at 7:30. There will be a large class to be initiated and other business of great importance. Every member should make an effort to be present.

The Knights Templar Commandery of this city has just received an invitation from the Chamber of Commerce at Albany, N. Y., inviting the Commandery, or its delegates, to visit Albany in connection with their trip to the Grand Encampment of the Knights Templar of the United States of America, which will be held at Saratoga Springs, July 9 to 13.

Home Guards of America.

The members of Newark home are requested to meet at the hall Sunday afternoon at 1:30. The degree team especially should be present as Captain George Jeremias of Columbus will be present, and other matters of interest will be up for discussion.

Red Men.

Minnewa Tribe, No. 52, met last night, and there were a great many chiefs present. A great amount of business was transacted. On next Friday's sleep there will be nine candidates for the adoption degree. J. P. Baker will represent No. 52 at the Great Council of the State of Ohio, which will meet at Marietta this month.

Ben Hur.

Tribe of Ben Hur will meet on May 13, instead of on May 5, as was announced through mistake last week. A large class of candidates will be initiated on this night and there will be a social session.

ALL WRONG

The Mistake is Made by Many Newark Citizens.

Don't mistake the cause of backache.

To be cured you must know the cause.

It is wrong to imagine relief is cure.

Backache is kidney ache. You must cure the kidneys.

A Newark resident tells you how this can be done.

Wesley Rowland, express driver, living on Washington St., near Mill St., East Newark, O., says: "Many a time my back pained me so and was so weak that I could not load my wagon. If I stopped to pick up anything it was all I could do to straighten up. My back pained me so at night that I could not sleep. I would wake up again with terrible pain through the back and shoulders as if I were in a cramp. I tried liniments and various remedies but found nothing that helped me until I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Crayton's drug store. Three boxes were all that were required to cure me and the cure has been permanent."

That was two years ago and I have had no trouble of the back since. For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's and take no other. 32.

A SOCIETY COMEDY

Entitled "Naval Engagements" to be Given at Taylor Hall Shortly, Direction of Miss King.

In order to improve the limited facilities of Taylor Hall, the management of the Y. M. C. A. will present within a couple of weeks, a play given for the purpose of raising funds to start the work.

The play is under the immediate direction of Miss Florence M. King and will be the clever and sterling two act farce "Naval Engagements," by Charles Dance.

It is a polished, society play of historic worth. Every line is a gem. It has for years been used by the best actors. The roles of Admiral and the Lieutenant having been assumed at different times by the great Wm. Farnen and the famous Mr. Gilbert and the inimitable Chas. Matthews.

Mrs. Gilbert scored in the "Widow," the famous Vestris as the ingenue and Dennis himself was done by no less a person than Brougham, of whom the great critic Wm. Winter says, "No man ever lived who could so portray the humorous whimsical character parts, particularly if they breathed of old Ireland."

A caste of well known young people will present it to the Taylor Hall audience about the 17th of May. The names and date will appear later. Those who like clean, refined comedy, amusing beyond all things, but with some smoothness of plot and of dialogue, will be sure to find a pleasant couple of hours in viewing and revising "Naval Engagements."

A Hard Debt to Pay.

"I owe a debt of gratitude that can never be paid off," writes G. S. Clark of Westfield, Iowa, "for my rescue from death, by Dr. King's New Discovery. Both lungs were so seriously affected that death seemed imminent. When I commenced taking New Discovery. The ominous dry, hacking cough quit before the first bottle was used, and two more bottles made a complete cure." Nothing has ever equaled New Discovery for coughs, colds and all throat and lung complaints. Guaranteed by F. D. Hall, druggist. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

Croton, O., May 4.—Word was received here this morning saying that William E. Willyerd of Massillon, O., had been instantly killed by coming in contact with a live wire.

Mr. Willyerd formerly resided in Mt. Vernon but was well and favorably known in this vicinity, having married Miss Anna Turner of Croton.

BURGLARY

OF A. B. McDONALD OF ELEVENTH STREET FRIDAY AFTERNOON

Robbers Secured Jewelry, Silverware, Clothing and Money to Considerable Value.

The residence of A. B. McDonald, 88 Eleventh street, was the scene yesterday of a bold daylight robbery.

While Mrs. McDonald and her daughter Mrs. Welty of Carlisle, Pa., who is visiting her mother, were attending the ball game, the house was entered and completely ransacked for valuables.

The ladies found everything out of place when they returned home about 5 p. m. and on taking inventory found that the thieves had gotten all the silverware in the house, a gold watch chain and a silver medallion that were highly prized on account of old associations. Mr. McDonald's gold cuff buttons and his best clothes, and Mrs. McDonald's engagement ring are missing, and a purse with a considerable sum of money in it was also taken.

The men were seen by workmen in the vicinity trying the back door and then boldly went to the front door and opened it with a key. The parties were closely enough observed by these workmen that any suspects arrested will be identified sure, if they are the men sought.

The police were called and are doing all that is possible to apprehend the miscreants.

On Thursday afternoon the home of Joseph Zahn on Wilson street, was also entered and two watches were secured. A neighbor saw a negro unlock the door and enter the home, but did not notify Mr. Zahn until after the invader had left the house.

IN POLICE COURT.

The case against Joseph Turaney, who was arrested several days ago for trespassing on the B. & O. company's property, was to have been heard Saturday morning but the court granted a continuance until next week.

Five cases were heard before Mayor McCleery Saturday morning, three being plan drunks. The drunks drew fines of $5 and costs and were sent to the stone pile.

W. L. Griggs was one of the victims before Mayor McCleery Saturday. The arrest record charged Griggs with being drunk and refusing to pay his fare from Newark to Zanesville on the interurban. A fine of $5 and costs was assessed.

John Matheeny a familiar face in the mayor's court was fined Saturday morning for misconduct while intoxicated. The charge was unusual to say the least. The officer charged that Matheeny annoyed Mrs. Matheeny, by rapping on the window of her bedroom, making it impossible for her to sleep.

OPERATION

Necessary to Save Life of Mr. Calvin Smith, Son of Captain W. A. Smith of Newark.

Mrs. W. A. Smith who was called a few days ago to New York, writes that the condition of her son, Calvin Smith, requires an immediate operation.

Mr. Smith, who is a draughtsman in an iron and steel plant in New York, had been troubled with what he thought was an ordinary sore throat. The other day he found great difficulty in breathing and by the time a doctor was summoned he was unconscious. The doctor expressed the belief that he was beyond hope but resorted to heroic measures and cut a hole in his throat and inserted a tube. Mr. Smith revived, and he was hurried to a hospital where an operation is to be performed to remove a growth in his throat.

Mr. Smith has many friends here who will hope that he may be quickly restored to health.

Four children were burned to death at West Branch, Michigan, while their mother and father were attending a dance. They had been locked in the house.

MADAMOISELLE PARCHESI—By Gelett Burgess

JUSTIN STURGIS had missed the "Veendam" by an hour. The next vessel of the line would not touch at Boulogne-sur-Mer until Saturday. He had still three days to wait, and he was already bored with the town. The Casino was closed, so, after whiling away the most of the morning at the fish market, he had struck out for the beach and walked along the sands below the Boulevard. A half-mile beyond the deserted bathing-machines he sat down on the shingle, and abstractedly watched the gulls circling about a huge rock which rose from the water between the limits of ebb and flood tide. It was in April, too early in the season for tourists or "trippers" from England, and the whole reach of shore was deserted, save for an occasional fish-wife shrimping, knee-deep, in the water, framed in a glittering perspective of sea, sand, and sunshine.

His wandering eye was arrested, after a time, by a patch of red that appeared and disappeared in the breakers which lazily washed the beach. After a closer examination, Justin rose and waded into the water to retrieve this bit of flotsom. It was a red silk parasol, caught by the rising tide, filled with sand and laced with the foam of the billows.

He opened it, set it upright in the sun to dry, burying its ivory handle in the pebbles, and then walked curiously down the beach, inspecting the sands. A little beyond where he had been sitting, he encountered a double line of footprints leading to and from a confused impression in the beach. There was a small hole scooped out by hand, half-filled with water, and from this abandoned resting-place the footprints led down to the foamy seaweed, as if the owner had escaped by way of the open sea. As the tide was rising, Justin surmised that the owner of the parasol had been there some time before, and would probably return to seek her lost property; and he saw in this chance, hope of an adventure. It was, however, by this time nearly noon, and the thought of luncheon constrained him to hide his discovery and return as soon as possible. He concealed the sunshade, therefore, beneath a ledge, and made his way back to his hotel.

He found the salle à manger occupied by a party or two, who were taking their déjeuner at a table not far from his, by an open window. The elder woman was dressed in black, and her manner and conversation betrayed the patient chaperon of a whimsical ward. Justin's eyes slipped over her face and figure lazily, and passed on to the young girl opposite her. Only her back was visible, unfortunately, but from its lines, the curve of her cheek and a coil of well-dressed hair, he formed an interested estimate of her charms, which was soon justified by the reflection of her face in a conveniently placed mirror. It was not long before the young lady, who had not been altogether oblivious of his entry, discovered this go-between also, and she sent a swift glance occasionally into the glass, not one of which shots missed its mark. Her face and expression gave her a mischievous original sort of beauty, so much her own as to preclude any hints as to her nationality. The two women were speaking French, engaged in an animated conversation, plainly audible from where the young man sat.

Never did Justin Sturgis more plainly regret his ignorance of the French language, for he could not read even a menu. A few words, indeed, he knew, and ombrelle sounds remarkably like an English word of similar significance. It was not long, then, before he made sure that his find on the shore might be put to good advantage, and he swore to himself that it would be redeemed only at the price of the girl's acquaintance.

As soon as he had made sure that she had left the hotel, Justin set out himself, and, making a detour at a rapid pace, reached the shore and recovered the parasol. Then, opening it, he stretched himself at full length under its shade and pretended to fall asleep. In a few moments he heard the crunching of pebbles, and, turning cautiously, he saw the young lady from the hotel picking her way among the boulders. By the time he had composed his features she had come up to him.

"Pardon, monsieur," she said, in excellent French, "but I perceive that you have my parasol."

The words, of course, were incomprehensible to Justin. He was, moreover, supposed to be asleep. He tightened his grip on the heavy ivory ring in the handle and tried to keep from smiling, but an imp of mischief was torturing him internally.

"Monsieur," the girl exclaimed impatiently—and that was as much as Justin understood, though there followed a number of sentences, violently spoken and emphasized with a stamp of the little foot whose shoe-prints he had admired that forenoon.

Justin rose now, made her an elaborate bow, and handed her the sunshade. These signs, however, seemed to him so inadequate that he spoke in English, on the chance of her understanding him. "I beg your pardon, mademoiselle, for a rather poor joke, but, as I have only just found your property, I was waiting to see if you would have the courage to claim it. Do you speak English?"

The girl's eyebrows had risen for a second, and she bit her lip. Her brown eyes gave him a swift look-over, from his shoes, which were pointed, to his hair, which was parted in the middle. "Non," she said, swallowing a smile; "monsieur ne parle pas Français."

"No," Justin answered in his turn; and at this illumination of the situation, they both broke forth into laughter, than which, perhaps, there could be no better introduction.

Now, some premonition had warned Justin, as he descended the hill, to stop at the pâtisserie and buy an assortment of cakes, which he had brought with him down to the shore. So, at a loss for words, in the hopes of detaining her as long as possible, he offered her the package, seated himself on the sand, and beckoned her an invitation. The girl accepted frankly, and, spreading a tiny handkerchief, she arranged the gâteaux upon it, for the repast.

There were coffee clairs, suffering a little from the torment of the rapid trip, and pâtis d'amour, whose shaking custard hearts were torn by the same commotion; two tarlettes, one of whose boatload of strawberry passengers had capsized; and a couple of bûches, sweet little sponges, saturated with rum-and-water—the favorite concoction of the American girl in Paris. She relieved the agony of the clairs, staunching their creamy wounds with a slim forefinger; she parted and petted the other cakes into shape; and, waving her hand swiftly over her spread, with a gesture of approval. She then signed to Justin that all was ready and helped herself to a bûche, which disappeared between her lips in a mumble of delight. It was enough for Justin to sit and watch her legerdemain, but she forced a cake upon him, that he might share her delight.

When they had finished eating, the young man set himself to the rather difficult task of amusing her, with an impromptu conversation without speech. He pointed to the sea and sky with gesticulations of admiration, and the girl evidently approved of the landscape, sea-scape, and weather. She helped on the dialogue in high spirits by pointing to the gulls, expressing a wish to fly by waving her arms vertically, and her ability to swim by horizontal motions. She called his attention to the fishing smacks, and, sailing in an imaginary boat, of which she seemed to hold sheet and tiller, she made a most successful voyage across the Channel. Justin himself preferred riding, and he mimicked a horse's gallop and trot till the girl wept with laughter, and so they responded in kind, one following the other. She proved herself a clever actress, willing to amuse as well as be amused by the droilery of their ridiculous pastime.

The acquaintance, now well under way by the adoption of this language of signs, progressed gayly. The young lady was evidently mistress of her own time, and the young man followed her. It was not long before the two were playing together like two children, building forts in the sand, pelting each other with rags of seaweed, and making rainbow mosaics of colored pebbles. They walked a mile or so up the beach and back again frolicking ingeniously, full of the joy of the warm spring afternoon sunshine, and captivated with the innumerable absurdities of their original relation and intercourse.

One of their earlier attempts at diversion was in the contrivance of a make-shift game of parchesi, the diagram for which Justin drew in lines upon the sand. The girl recognized the circles, ladders, and "safety-points" immediately, and with her white pebbles for counters, proved herself well skilled in the rules of the game, and a diff-cult antagonist in the race around the square into the "home circle." Partly on account of her luck with his wooden dice, and partly for want of a better name, since she would not tell him hers, he began to call her "Mademoiselle Parchesi," and this pseudonym she kept as long as their acquaintance lasted.

Both, indeed, had so entered into the spirit of the game, and had devoted themselves with such energy to the contrivance of new methods of communication, that four hours passed rapidly, and six o'clock found them by the fish market well fatigued with their romp. It was time to return for dinner, but Justin had no idea of letting the excitement die here. Much to his chagrin, however, the young lady absolutely forbade his accompanying her to the hotel, and, with a decided gesture, intimated that he must not even recognize her there.

This was a difficult message to communicate, and she accomplished it only after an elaborate pantomime, requiring many simulated scenes. She acted out several possibilities, taking his part with clever parody—where she approved his behavior she applauded enthusiastically, clapping her hands high in the air; where she made him commit an indiscretion she stamped her foot pettishly, and hissed her condemnation of his role. In this manner she succeeded in laying out the course of action he was to follow, and he was given to understand that her déjeuner was all but an ogress, and that even his by-play in the mirror would bring about the most unpleasant consequences.

She agreed to come down to the beach every afternoon without fail, and in the mornings as well, whenever she was given the opportunity. Justin, however, must ask neither her name, residence, nor age, and he must never—jamais—try to find out. She liked him, yes, she liked him very much—especially his hair, which was dangerously curly—and if he were good, she would give him a photograph to put in his watch, though she intimated with a fluttering finger that it would not stay there long. They were to be good friends for three days, if he obeyed her wishes; after that—an affected little shrug of her shoulders, a glance upward, and a handkerchief held to very dry brown eyes, intimated her despair. All this in the most fascinating play-acting, distracting in the extreme.

This was the beginning of a three-days' comradeship, half child's play and half flirtation, more piquantly amusing than anything Justin Sturgis had ever before attempted. Mademoiselle Parchesi was ready for any entertainment he might suggest, lithe-limbed and graceful, delighting in constant action, and swept at times by a gale of merriment for which he could discover no reason.

They got on, for the most part, by means of the language of signs that they had first adopted, and which they added to, more and more, every time they met, by the acceptance of significant conventions, instinctive as the motions of savages or deaf mutes. The few words common to both French and English, such as hotel, train, diner, chocolat, poste, télégraphique, photographie, lettre, voyage, and so forth, they found very convenient, and by these they avoided the necessity of many a long rehearsal in pantomime. As a last resort Justin would sometimes refer to his French-English, English-French dictionary, but this came to be understood as unfair and against the rules of the game they were playing; and the girl would vigorously protest against the consultation. Justin's note-book played a good part, too, in their interviews, and before he left her it was completely filled with their almost impossible sketches.

All this did well enough for the simpler conditions of their friendship, but Justin's increasing admiration for his playfellow engendered many ideas too abstract for this limited means of communication, even when he wished to confess his thoughts. He revolted occasionally against the obstacle of his ignorance, which shut him out of her thoughts, as by an insurmountable wall, and at these times he relieved his mind with a few sharp sentences in English, expressing himself with a force he might not have dared use had he thought he were understood. At other times, however, this very barrier gave him protection, and the belief in his comrade's ignorance of English emboldened him to speak merrily with immense candor, breaking out into fearless phrases of whimsical expostulation, speculation, or open compliment.

"You're the most delicious sort of a gambin," he would say, "a new kind to me—I don't know just where to place you. . . . I wonder how many of the girls I know would stand the test of not being allowed to talk for three whole days. . . . If you could speak English, I wonder what you'd say. You'd probably bore me to death, or else insist on talking personalities. . . . What sort of funny things would come out of that funny face?"

It was always a surprise to him when people appear to like me, but I'm pretty sure you really do, or you wouldn't take so much trouble to come down here with me. . . . I'm sure it's only the novelty of the thing, though. . . . I'm sure I wouldn't get tired of you, though, for a long time. . . . I suppose, now, you think you dress well, but you don't. You oughtn't to wear red. You ought to wear blue. . . . You've got such a funny mouth—but it's a good, generous one. . . . I wonder if you blackened your eyebrows this morning?"

Mademoiselle Parchesi schooled herself assiduously: when he talked she paid close attention, and always laughed as if she was sure he was saying something amusing. In fact, it seemed to Justin that she laughed more at his remarks, seriously as they were spoken, than at her own, which, by the token of her expression, must have been decidedly witty. She attempted a little English occasionally, mounting the words very prettily, with a French accent, but sometimes she would also speak her mind, and deliver a few rapid incomprehensible sentences quite deliberately, looking at him through half-closed lids, and smiling as she turned away. Her eyes wrinkled pleasantly as she did this, and her mouth was apt to become unmanageable, while her eyebrows went up and down—what Mademoiselle Parchesi was thinking of, Justin would have given a good deal to know.

The tender meeting the "Obdam" was to leave the jetty at eight o'clock Saturday evening; that afternoon, therefore, was the last time that the two could meet, and the three hours on the beach below the Boulevard were well filled with their sports and nonsense. It seemed rather cruel to Justin that such an experience as this new friendship would come to an end without some trace of regret on the part of his new-made friend, but nothing he could do succeeded in drawing from Mademoiselle Parchesi any expression of concern at the approaching separation, and she obviously parried his advances in this direction. This hurt him a good deal. It was inconsistent with the estimate he had formed of her character to be so unfeeling, for she had always been frank and sympathetic before, in all their meetings.

He threw off this feeling of disappointment as well as he could, nevertheless, and determined to make the best of this last opportunity of seeing her. He had had three days of unconventional, almost-primitive, comradeship with her, happily without a hint of discord. He would not spoil that now by a disagreement. He was very glad to have been able to know her, even for this short interval. He had no hope of ever seeing her again, and so he gave himself up to the pleasure of this last time.

They walked up the beach more quietly than usual, and by five o'clock reached the place where they had first met. The shore was deserted, and they sat down together, with a little embarrassment, the tension of their approaching farewell asserting itself in spite of Mademoiselle Parchesi's nervous attempts at raillery. These she gave up after a while, and sat quietly gazing at the sea.

Justin looked at the girl narrowly and wondered what was behind her silence. It was some time before he could pull himself together enough to say good-bye, and then the old difficulty confronted him; the barrier of language, never so exasperating, never so insurmountable as now, alone with her in the gathering dusk of sky and sea—for the last time. Again the temptation to free his mind was too great to be resisted.

"I can't stand it! I won't stand it!" he said. "The idea of being here with a girl like you, whom I shall probably never see again in my life, and not able to talk to you! By Jove, I will talk to you, whether you understand or not! You're my kind; we are of the same caste. I know it by every gesture you make. There ought to be a universal language for people like us. I ought to be able to understand what you say, if you spoke Arabic, on a day like this! And I could make myself worth your while, I'm sure of that—I feel remarkably interesting, and I'm not afraid to tell the truth about either myself or you. But what's the use? You're a mummy—you're a ghost—you're deaf and dumb! Grrrr!" He growled the last ejaculation of dissatisfaction through clenched teeth.

Mademoiselle Parchesi certainly did not look like either a ghost, a mummy, or a deaf-mute, for she sat up straight, clapped her hands and cried: "Encore! encore!" laughing nervously.

It seemed foolish to Justin to go on so, talking to himself in this ridiculous way, but there was something in the girl's attention that encouraged him, he hardly knew why. More than this, a finer sense of the humorous possibilities of the case awakened in him. He went on with his monologue, speaking more to himself than to her.

"I'd like to know who you are! I don't mean your name and residence, but who you really are—who you are to me, and what it means, my meeting you like this!"

Mademoiselle Parchesi did not attempt to reply, but sat back, watching his profile outlined against the sky. She seemed more serious than she had ever seemed before, more serious even than the occasion demanded. She no longer said, "Vat ess eet?" in broken English. Her hands were tightly clasped together, and her teeth were set on her lower lip. Justin gazed at her as if she were a portrait.

"You've got such a funny face," he continued. "You're not a bit pretty, but you've got what not one woman in ten has, and that's a personality. No one would ever forget you. There's something in behind your face that turns the lights up and down, and sets off red and green fire, and stagmanages your whole expression. Let me see your hand!" and he reached for it assuredly.

She gave it him a little reluctantly, and he inspected it at his leisure. "Hm!" he murmured, in a manner that palmists use. "What a headline! You're in no danger from that two inches of heart. . . . You'll live to be eighty-six years old. . . . Yes, you'll be married. . . . How would you like to be married—to me?"

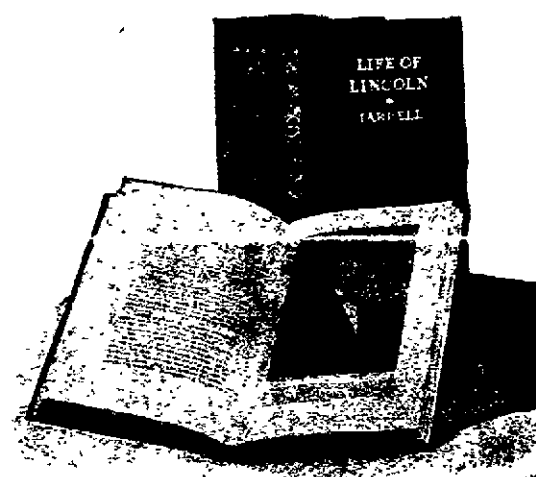

Mademoiselle Parchesi's hand curled almost imperceptibly, but Justin did not release it. He turned it over, felt of the phalanges, tested the density of the flesh and the smoothness of the skin. There were little pads on the

CORRESPONDENCE BUREAU OF FASHIONS CONDUCTED BY MARJORIE DANE

DEAR MISS DANE: With your kind assistance I am sure I will get a pretty spring suit, also a summer dress. What kind of material do you think would suit me. I have fair hair, blue eyes, at times you would think they were green. Height 5 feet 1 inch, bust 34, hips 39 inches, age 25. Kindly suggest something not too expensive.—Mrs. D.

A nice gray or navy blue serge or Vienna is excellent for general wear as a suit and the fine light weight mixed grays known as men's suitings have too much to recommend them. They wear like iron and are so dust resisting. You should have a pleated skirt, the pleats taking any form you please, the bottom to be finished with a hem. Make the coat in pony style as short as possible and a little looser than last season's styles. Instead of the seams from the shoulders back and front, they are only seen in the back now, and the fronts show little hip pockets trimmed with braid but no seams. The collar is in man fashion, and the coat closes single-breasted down the front with four buttons. The sleeves are coat shaped, finished with a little braid at the wrist, and altogether, this new model is one of the nicest little wraps imaginable. For your summer frock, cotillion, crepe de Paris or any of the thin girlish-looking silks will make up into a pretty, inexpensive girlish frock. Checked taffeta, too, is nice. This you could have made in princess style with gathers about the waist and a deep yoke of lace at the top, the bottom of the skirt to be tucked. The sleeves should be full and confined by cuffs matching the yoke. It is not an easy matter to suggest a definite style for a garment without knowing exactly what kind of material is to be employed, but the general lines of the model suggested will be becoming to you.

Dear Miss Dane: Kindly suggest a pretty way for making an evening dress of pink silk. I don't want anything elaborate. I am 18 years old, blue eyes and fair hair, good complexion with lots of color, height 5 feet, 32 bust, 20 waist and 36 hips. If you think this color too showy, please suggest some other shades.—Maude N.

Pink silk will be by no means too showy for an evening frock. Make a fairly full skirt gathered into the belt in groups and trimmed on the bottom with a couple of overlapping frills of pink point de spir hemmed with pink baby ribbon. Have a baby waist cut low end of her fingers, where the tactile nerves were concentrated. These he pinched softly.

"These fool palmistry books give you a sort of map with little mountains and gulfs and rivers and peninsulas to guide one in exploring the human hand, but they don't help one much about a person's climate and meteorology—storms and winds and tides and currents and all that. It's all that that I'd like to know! I wonder what sort of a friend you'd be. I wonder how you'd wear, and if I'd get tired of you, or you of me!"

There is no word for "wonder" in French; if there were, Mademoiselle Parchesi might have used it then, also, for she looked up suddenly as if to speak and her eyes were full of a message she was trying to find the courage to say. But she looked down again passively and reclosed her hands, saying "Encore!" under her breath.

"I suppose," said Justin through his teeth, "if I were a certain sort of man, I would try to kiss you now, and if you were a different sort of girl, you would let me, after more or less stage business. Here's a mise-en-scène appropriate enough for any sort of a flirtation. I wonder if I am that sort of man?"

He rose and paced up and down the sand a few moments, thinking over the situation so intently that he was almost oblivious of the girl's presence. In her manner a few hints had begun to trouble him with a suggestion that, at first, he could not determine. He turned to her and saw that she was watching him intently. She had drawn on her cape as if preparing to leave. He went up to her quickly, with a flash of intuition, and standing still, said, deliberately, "I believe I will kiss you, and see what good that will do!"

He had made no suggestive motion, but as soon as the words had left his mouth Mademoiselle Parchesi started up and took a step away from him, and stood in an attitude of defense. Her face had gone scarlet, and her hands were raised to her breast.

With a rapid gesture he seized her by both arms and looked her straight in the eyes. "You speak English!" he cried, angrily. "You have understood every word I have said from the very beginning, and you've deliberately let me go on, talking like a fool. You've tricked me, and you ought to be ashamed of yourself!" Then with a toss of his head he left her standing there, her hands covering her face, and walked away.

What had he said to her? Nothing of consequence perhaps, nothing at least he was ashamed of, but the feeling that he had been played with and led on for so long a time aroused a suspicion in her. How stupid he had been not to have suspected her! But it had not entered his mind to doubt the girl after her first words. Her face had told him nothing of her nationality; she was only herself, Mademoiselle Parchesi, his three-day's friend—it seemed like three months! The recollection of her original escapades softened him, and a saving sense of humor came to her rescue, overthrowing all his annoyance. Certainly she had been as clever as he had been dull, and in a few moments he had acknowledged it to himself.

There was a rustling of silk skirts behind him, and he had but time to assume his mask of resentment when a hand was laid on his arm.

"I'm very sorry!" Mademoiselle Parchesi was saying, very softly; "I am ashamed of myself, and I apologize."

She looked up at him shyly through a little dew of tears. "But it was so funny, it was so terribly funny!" I tried to tell you so many, many times, really I did, but you were so awfully sure I was French; I couldn't help going on with the joke! And when you began saying things you really meant, so frankly, I couldn't resist the temptation to let you go on, though I knew I was no better than an eaves-dropper. I've been in Paris for three years at a French pension, and it's so long since I've had any one say real things to me. You were so perfectly dear and genuine and absurd, and I was afraid you'd stop it all if you thought I understood. I have never heard a man really talk to himself before, and it fascinated me. I understood what you meant, all the time, I'm sure I did, but now you'll think I'm a horrid little mis! But I don't care, it was terrible funny! Wasn't it?"

They laughed together as they had laughed when they first met. "I'll forgive you," Justin said, as they turned down the beach, "if you'll tell me whether I am to consider all this an episode or an event?"

"You're going to leave to-night for New York in the 'Obdam,' aren't you?" she said.

"Yes, of course; and I thought it was cruel of you not to be sorry to say goodbye."

"Well," said Mademoiselle Parchesi, punching little holes in the smooth, wet sand with the end of her red silk parasol, "as long as I'm going in the 'Obdam,' too, perhaps this affair is only an episode. But, considering that I've met a man who has told the truth for three whole days, I think it ought to be regarded as an event."

for wear with a guimpe and trim the edge with little ruffles of the point de spir caught on the left of the yokeage with a ribbon garniture of pink roses. The belt should be of soft pink ribbon and the sleeves full puffs of the de spir, crushed strips of the silk coming down over them from the armholes at intervals, the whole confined by lace cuffs. The décolletage may have a strip of lace sewn on in a square effect, or a guimpe of a very light nature as fine ivory strigged net, white net scattered with pearls, or anything dainty really that suggests itself.

Dear Miss Dane: You have given me much good advice before that I would ask your help again. I have a loose summer coat, about seven-eighths length, that I wish to make over into a jacket for wear this spring. It is not cut very full and I think it is not becoming to me. It is black and white check, not distinct checks and only about half an inch square. The back is plain with a seam in the center and a bias strip of the goods concealing the seam. The sleeves are rather full and I think could be used without recutting. The fronts are plain and it closes invisibly under a facing on one side. I have little labels running down from the collar. I am five feet two inches tall, bust measure 36, waist 26 and hip measure 42. Would you advise a pony style or the tight-fitting?—Fret."

I am inclined to favor the pony style as being of more practical value on account of the fairly loose fit. Such a coat would answer well for an extra summer wrap, while a tight-fitting wrap would be apt to crush the frock worn underneath. The looser styles are also more summery looking. Place the lower edge of your paper pattern to the lower edge of the coat in recutting; and, by the way, the model without the front shoulder seam is newer than that having the seams from the shoulders both back and front. Strap all the seams with the goods cut bias. ELIZABETH LEE.

SUCH little dresses as this one are among the most useful that the child's wardrobe contains. They can be made more or less dainty as the collar is plain or embroidered; they involve very little labor in the making, yet they are absolutely becoming and absolutely satisfactory. The long lines given by the baby collars shown in this one add an admirable touch. For cool weather the long sleeves are desirable, but short ones will be greatly in vogue throughout the warmer season, and the neck can be made either with or without the standing collar. As illustrated, white linen is made with collar of the material embroidered in a simple design. But every material that is used for children's dresses is appropriate for this one, chambray and the like for the dresses of playtime wear, white serge and the light-weight wools for the cooler days, as well as washable fabrics. Again, the collar could be made from all-over embroidery and the edge finished with suitable little banding or frills if the work done on the material seems to involve too great labor, or a finish of scallops and eyelet holes only would be pretty and dainty.

The dress suits the tiny boys of two and four, as well as the girls to six years of age. It consists of a front and the backs with a plain yoke, to which the plaited dress is attached and over which the fancy collar is arranged. The full sleeves are gathered into bands whether they extend to the wrist or are very short, but when made long they are finished with roll-over cuffs.

The quantity of material required for the medium size (4 years) is 4 1/2 yards 27, 3 1/2 yards 30 or 2 3/4 yards 44 inches wide.

The pattern 5636 is cut in sizes for children of 2, 4 and 6 years.

SEVEN GORED PLAITED SKIRT.

Every variation of the plaited skirt is to be worn throughout the coming season, and new ones are constantly appearing. Here is an eminently graceful and altogether attractive model that can be made either in round or walking length, and that consequently suits the entire range of seasonable materials. In the illustration it is made of clifton Panama cloth trimmed with braid and stitched with belding silk, but if designed for house wear it would be appropriate for voiles, for pongee, for tulle and all materials of similar weight. Later it will make an excellent model for the linen suits that will be in demand.

The skirt is made with seven gores and is laid in plaits at the back and at the sides, those of each group turning toward one another.

The quantity of material required for the medium size is 8 1/2 yards 27, 7 yards 44 or 52 inches wide when material has figure or n.p.; 5 1/2 yards 44 or 5 yards 52 inches wide when it has not, with 11 yards of braid to trim, as illustrated.

The pattern 5611 is cut in sizes for a 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32-inch waist measure. Either pattern will be mailed to any address on receipt of ten cents to Marjorie Dane, 44 East Twenty-third Street, New York City.

The Eagle People and the Giant Clam

IN the far Northwest lay the Town of Skidans. The chief of it had a nephew living with him, the boy was the son of the old chief who was dead, and when he grew up he was to be chief in his father's place. Meantime the uncle studied how he could get rid of the boy and retain the chieftainship himself.

One day the uncle took a board and covered it with pitch. Then he threw eagle feathers on the pitch to hide it and placed the board in the bow of his canoe.

"Now," said he to his slaves, "take my nephew Gotsoma out to spear fish. Make him lie down on one side of the pitch covered board. When he attempts to throw his spear, push him overboard. He will stick to the board and will not be able to help himself."

The slaves did as they were commanded and then paddled back to the town lamenting, saying that the boy had fallen into the water and been drowned.

All the people were very sorry, for they liked the boy and hated the uncle.

The boy had been thrown overboard near the mouth of the river, and a swift tide took him out to sea, but he did not drown, for the board to which he was stuck fast kept him afloat.

At a point near a village the waves finally washed him up on the beach, and scrambling up the shore, he sat down with his back to the sun.

Soon the heat melted the pitch so that he could pull the board off.

Scarcely had he rid himself of the troublesome thing when he heard the sound of singing and saw two girls advancing down a path which led from the village to the shore.

He arranged his two fine blankets of manitou skin and his ear ornaments of caribou skin which he had put on when he went out to hunt in the canoe, and advanced to meet the strangers, a well-dressed, fine-looking stalwart youth. He also had his quiver strung across his shoulder with two bows and many arrows in it, and anybody could see that he was a chief's son.

One of the girls turned out to be the daughter of the chief of the neighboring village, and the other was her slave. They greeted the boy kindly and invited him to the chief's house.

On arriving there, the boy found that he had come to the village of the Eagles. They gave Gotsoma food and adopted him into the family of the chief's wife, for the chief told him he was perfectly well aware of all that had happened, as a wise old shaman had foretold the whole thing a fortnight ago.

It was a curious place, this Eagle town. Every morning just before daybreak the people all entered their feather clothing and sat in a line under a pole, which was laid horizontally between two trees in front of the town, like a great perch, as it were.

Sitting there, stretching their wings and pluming their feathers, they discussed the best place to fish for the day, and then flew away. At night they returned with all sorts of things—whales' tails, white porpoises, porpoises, halibut, red cod, spring salmon—everything one can think of. The strongest of them sometimes even brought back a whole whale which he had caught.

After a few days Gotsoma begged that he might have a suit of feathers and go with the other people fishing.

The chief of the Eagles told him to bring a box which stood against the wall. The boy brought it, and the chief, opening it, took out another box. From the second box he took out a third, and from the third a fourth. Then out of the fourth box he drew a suit of eagle feathers and handed it to the boy, saying: "That is the eagle skin and feathers which I wore as a young man. It is too small for me to wear now, but it will make you stronger than any other of the Eagles'."

The next morning Gotsoma put on his feather suit and flew up on the perch with the other Eagles. After a little practice he found he could fly very well indeed—it was no trouble.

"Now, when you go fishing," cautioned the chief before the Eagles people flew away, "catch anything you like except a clam. Do not try to catch clams. There is a giant clam living hereabout which is dangerous. Its head looks just like the head of a sea-otter, but it has a great body embedded in the mud. If you try to catch it it will close its shell on your talons and hold you fast. One of our best hunters was lost that way not long ago."

Gotsoma, looking to be careful and flew away, out over the sea, delighted with his new experience. He circled round and round, looking for something to catch. Finally he saw a whale swimming along below him, sending the water through its blow-hole and lashing the sea into foam with its tail.

Swift as an arrow Gotsoma swooped down and caught the whale in his talons. He found he could rise into the air with it easily, for the eagle suit of the chief had made him wonderfully strong.

Back to the village he flew with his catch, and all the people were full of compliments at his having caught a whale the very first time he went fishing. But Gotsoma modestly said it was all due to the suit which the chief had given to him.

After that the boy took his seat every morning with the other Eagles on the perch in front of the town, and in time he became the greatest fisher of them all.

But one day, when he was circling about high in the air, he saw below him the head of the great clam against which he had been warned. Confident of his strength, he thought to distinguish himself by capturing it.

Down he swooped and tried to seize the clam. But the clam, quickly drawing in its head, closed its shell with a snap. It missed his talons, but caught him by one wing and began to sink down into the water, dragging him with it.

He was no match for the giant clam and called for help. The other Eagles came to his assistance, the first one seizing Gotsoma and the others tailing on to the first in a vain effort to raise him up, until the clam had a whole string of Eagles which he was dragging under water.

Meantime a little Eagle had flown back to the village and told the chief's mother. Hastily, she put on her eagle suit. She was a very old Eagle and had lost many feathers, but she had a strong arm and was skilled of flight. She reached the scene of the conflict just as the wing of the last Eagle was about to disappear beneath the water.

Grabbing it, she exerted all her strength. It was a hard struggle, but finally she lifted them all out of the water and took them home to dry.

She gave Gotsoma a good scolding and he promised to try to catch a clam again. The chief's mother, in fact, he said he would like to marry the chief's daughter, give up fishing and flying, and go back to be chief of the own people at Skidans.

So it was agreed, and after the wedding all the Eagle people, with the bride and bridegroom, put on their feathers and flew over to Skidans.

The people there were astonished at first, but when the visitors put off their Eagle clothing and they saw Gotsoma once more they hailed him as chief and told him his wicked uncle had been dead for some time.

Then the Eagles went back to their own village, and Gotsoma, settling down with his wife, lived for many years as chief of Skidans. But he never could bear clams, even when made into chowder.

An Investment in Good Reading

$1.00 a year

Before mentioning some things that McClure's will have in the next few months, we want to emphasize to you just what it means to get such a magazine as McClure's for ten cents a number, or one dollar a year. You pay a dollar for a popular novel, and you pay from two to five dollars for more serious and noteworthy books. Yet any number of McClure's contains more reading than one of your dollar or dollar-and-a-half novels, and a year contains a whole library of reading—not only bright and sparkling fiction, but works of moment and importance, worthy to be bound in two volumes and appear permanently on a library shelf.

Good Reading

No advertisement can really tell you what is in McClure's. Even the reading of one number will not tell you this, because you will not then realize how each number seems to come up to the standard of that one number, although that number is so exceptionally good. The truth is that McClure's Magazine is a remarkable magazine, giving, as it does, with equal grasp, the best work of the best writers this country has produced alongside the best reports of the best subjects in which people are interested.

An "all-star" company

In the theatre we find three kinds of companies—the star company, the stock company and the all-star company. The star company has one famous actor supported by a number of indifferent ones. The stock company is a company of actors, each one of whom is good in his part. The all-star company is a company in which each different actor is a star.

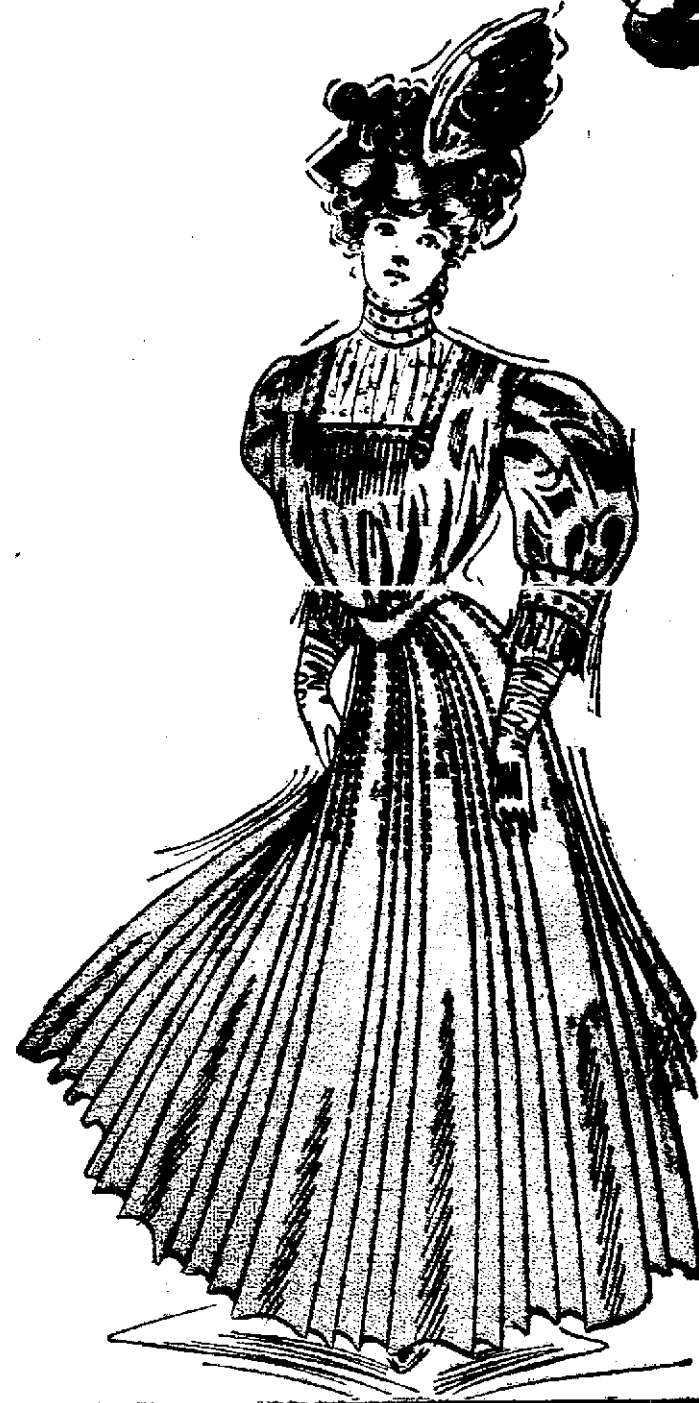

The production of McClure's Magazine is the work of an all-star company. Each writer is a top liner. You do not read a magazine in which all the rest of the reading matter is sacrificed to one good feature. There are no features in the magazine sense because each number is a feature in itself—it is so good and well balanced. This is what you get for ten cents when you buy a number of McClure's Magazine.

Subscribe to-day

We do not care how you get McClure's just so you get it. You can buy it on the news stand or have it mailed direct on subscription. Either way, you get it the same date. McClure's is its own inducement to make an effort to get it, but in addition to that we make it as easy as possible for you to get it.

FETCHING FROCKS - for - SUMMER WEAR

THE weaving of silken fabrics has reached the point of perfection where they are almost as light and cool for summer wear as linens or cottons. In fact, a light-weight silk is far cooler than the heavy grades of linen employed for tailored shirtwaist and coat suits. Moreover, the silk costume, if well cared for, lightens summer laundry bills.

Another good feature of the silk costume this summer is its skeleton, suspender or jumper waist, which admits the wearing of various under-blouses that lend variety to the make-up.

Chiffon taffeta is a most dependable silk for jumper costumes, and it comes this season in a variety of stripes, plaids and checks as well as the solid colors. Louisine is also a dependable silk, though it has a trifle less body than the taffetas. Foulards make pretty traveling dresses, shirtwaist suits and general utility gowns, but they are not dressy and should not be chosen by the woman who expects to achieve a fussy frock or who can afford but one silk gown in the season.

Some of the novelty costumes show cloth applied on the silk, but for real summer wear a touch of lace is much better than either cloth or velvet.

Quite generally the skirts are side-pleated, and show no trimming save graduated bias bands of the same material, or a rougher silk or velvet ribbon in the same or a harmonious tint. Where the silk shows a plaid, check, stripe or figure, the plain silk or velvet ribbon used for trimming is of the darkest tint. Except in very elaborate costumes, lace is not used on the skirt. It is reserved for the under-blouse or guimpe, which is not even half hidden by the jumper. The latter may be cut round to give a deep yoke effect, or it may be cut very deep, front and back, so that the guimpe becomes a vest. The mandolin and kimono sleeves are much used for silk jumpers, but they are quite short, seldom coming below the elbow, while the under-blouse sleeve may reach to the wrist or the elbow, according to the purpose for which the costume has been selected. Blouses intended for street wear show a general tendency to longer sleeves.

The woman who does her own dressmaking can evolve these silk jumper costumes at a reasonable figure, but the woman who must hire her dressmaker by the day or give out her dress to be made will save money by investing in a ready-made silk costume. Never have factories turned them out in such bewildering variety and in such inconspicuous modes. Color combinations are so excellent that even the woman of quietest taste can find just what she wants in the ready-to-wear department, as the models displayed above will prove. All these models were selected from stocks offered by prominent manufacturers of women's garments.

Four beautiful models are shown here, selected from designs that retail, ready made, at prices varying from $15.00 to $30.00. No. 1 is the most expensive costume, because it shows a touch of hand embroidery on the jumper. The fabric is chiffon taffeta. The skirt is made with innumerable flat side-pleats. The sleeves, which are mere caps, and the top of the jumper are outlined with heavy Wallachian embroidery. The model from which this drawing was made was of brown silk, with a blouse of ecru net and lace, and a hat of Tuscan straw in mushroom shape, crowned with brown velvet ribbon and rich crimson cherries with foliage.

No. 2 shows another wide, pleated skirt, and bretelles

so broad as to simulate a cape for street wear. Both the bretelles and skirt are set off by bias bands of the silk. This is worn over a sleeveless guimpe of net and lace.

The plaid suspender costume shown in No. 3 is one of the season's novelties and is most becoming to slender figures. The plaids used show good combinations of black and white, navy and white, green and white, golden brown and cream. In stripes it is offered in both wide and narrow, black, blue, green; gray or copper on white, and in a number of solid colors. This can be bought as low as $17.50, and with a simple net or batiste waist, makes a dressy costume for afternoons.

Least expensive of all is the natty striped silk suit with a hat of braided or plaited natural-colored straw, with hatpins of the same braid and ribbon to match the costume. These hats, trimmed in ribbon and odd pins, are most popular.

I will always be pleased to answer questions that grow out of these fashion talks, if self-addressed and stamped envelope is forwarded with the question to 56 East Twenty-third street, New York City.
